The Word Is Out: Grass Is In At Plum Bottom Farm

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "When you think about all the government regulations, environmental concerns and just plain economics--all these things together--the word is out, grass is in."

You would expect the president of the National Forage and Grassland Council to make statements such as this. But for John Rodgers, an eighth generation farmer at Plum Bottom Farm, this is what he believes. When Rodgers started in 1955, the family farm that had been purchased in 1754 from John, Thomas and Richard Penn, son and two grandsons of William Penn, was somewhat run down for several generations. But this farm became the inspiration to develop an environmental consciousness long before the term environmentalist became popular.

"When I came along, I had a feeling I wanted to do something to leave the land better than I found it," Rodgers said. "Through 'forage giants' like Dr. John Washko and Dr. John Baylor at Penn State, and Dr. Raymond Hoglund at

Maryland Sets Holstein Convention

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — There's still time to make reservations for the 1994 Maryland Holstein Convention and Sale, scheduled to be held March 11 and 12 at the Ramada Inn, in Hagerstown, Md.

According to convention officials, those wishing to make reservations should call Kevin Mellott immediately at (301) 223-9220 to reserve banquet and luncheon tickets for the convention.

The annual convention schedule for regular business is on Friday, March 11, starting at 9:30 a.m. with registration, a dairy bar and exhibits.

At 10:30 a.m., Kenlin Martin of the Washington County Holstein Club is to welcome the state's breeders and delegates to the northern part of the state.

He is to be followed immediately by Oren Bender, president of the Maryland Holstein Association,

NMAB Approves Interim Criteria Modifications, Reviews Draft Regs

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Nutrient Management Advisory Board to the State Conservation Commission on Wednesday approved modifications to the interim criteria for certification of a nutrient management specialist and reviewed a partial draft of proposed regulations under the Nutrient Management Act.

A quorum of the 15-member board met in Room 309 of the state Department of Agriculture building in Harrisburg, despite a winter storm warning and calls for accumulations of 1 to 2 feet of snow.

The board last met in January, having canceled its February meeting because of work delays caused by a number of winter storms.

And while the State Conservation Commission (SCC) is under a tight deadline schedule to create regulations and criteria for nutrient management control, as set by the Nutrient Management Act, no additional meetings are being scheduled to make up for the loss of the February meeting.

The scope of business before the board Wednesday ranged from reviewing and approving modifications to interim criteria for certification of a nutrient management specialist, to reviewing proposed regulations for some of the initial portions of the Nutrient Management Act.

Two Named To Pa. Holstein Hall

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — E. Wayne Beshore, New Cumberland, and John Umble, Atglen, are the newest members of the Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame. The two were named to the elite Hall of Fame during the state cattle club's annual banquet February 25 at the Gettysburg Ramada Inn.

Honored with the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Young Holstein Breeder award were Dave and Phoebe Bitler, Fleetwood.

York Countian Wayne Beshore has had a lifelong career in agriculture. A PHA member since 1946, he has served as president and state director from York County, state delegate to the national convention for many years, state convention chairman in 1981 and on numerous county and state committees.

From his first 12,000-pound herd average in the late 1940's, Beshore built the herd to one of the county's first besting the

Swine Producers Discover Manure Management Alternatives

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Opportunities to manage manure through alternatives such as cropping, grazing, pack bedding, and nutrient redistribution are holding the doors open for swine farmers who may be uncertain about what to do now that Pennsylvania has a nutrient management law.

Farmers have a variety of alternatives once a plan is in place to ensure the balance of nutrient needs and environmental stewardship for their high-producing cropland, according to specialists at the Nutrient Management for Pennsyl-

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 2, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was moderate to good. Add on orders and earlier than scheduled deliveries were noted as receivers worked in advance of heavy snow forecast for Eastern delivery channels. Offerings varied from in good balance to fully adequate. Live supplies were moderate overall; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent higher at 53 to 65 cents. Trade sentiment was steady to firm. In the parts complex, supplies were irregularly balanced from plant to plant.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, March 2, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY WHEAT PRICES TURNED STRONGER, WEDNESDAY, BOOSTED BY IMPROVED EXPORT DEMAND AND IDEAS WHEAT IS CONSIDERED OVERSOLD. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES FELL SLIGHTLY PRESSURED BY INCREASED TRADE TENSIONS BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE U.S. AND LACK OF FRESH EXPORT NEWS. WHEAT 2 TO 6 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 3 TO 5 CENTS LOWER. SOR- GHUM 3 TO 7 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 1 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. EXPORT WHEAT SALES HAVE BEEN SLOW ALL WEEK BUT SOME INTERESTS TODAY FIRMED PRICES. DRY CONDITIONS REMAIN IN WEST PLAINS WHEAT AREAS ALSO SUPPORTED PRICES. TRADERS BELIEVE WHEAT MARKETS ARE REACHING THE OVERSOLD LEVEL. WEAKER CORN AND BEAN PRICES DUE TO LACK OF EXPORT DEMAND AND A SHARP DROP IN THE U.S. STOCK MARKET TODAY. TENSIONS BETWEEN U.S. AND JAPAN DUE TO THREATS OF U.S. TRADE SANCTIONS AGAINS JAPAN, PRESSURED PRICES. THIS COULD SEVERLY HURT EXPORT SALES TO ONE OF THE MOST RELIABLE U.S. GRAIN CUSTOMERS. SOYBEAN PRICES WERE ALSO EFFECTED BY DRIER WEATHER FORECAST FOR NORTHERN BRAZIL OVER THE NEXT WEEK ALLOWING HARVEST TO RESUME.

EXPORT NEWS USDA ACCEPTED ONE BID TO SELL 39,800 TONNES HARD RED WINTER WHEAT TO THE FORMER USSR UNDER EEP FOR APRIL SHIPMENT. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

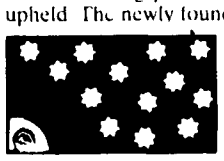
MARCH 7-13, 1994

NATIONAL AARDVARK WEEK.

SEVENTH FROM THE SUN

On March 13 1781 William Herschel was making a routine telescopic survey of the sky when he made an important discovery At first, he thought the disklike light he saw was a comet, so he carefully tracked its motion for some weeks It was not until several months later after a preliminary orbit was calculated, that he realized he had discovered a new planet The name for this cosmic body occasioned much discussion (And still does among children!) Herschel proposed Georgium Sidus in honor of England's George III Others suggested naming it after Herschel Finally, the tradition of naming planets after gods of Greek mythology was upheld The newly found seventh planet was named after the father of the Titans and grandfather of Jupiter Uranus



Everything is good in its place.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Sometimes we hurt the Earth without even knowing it For example, something as seemingly innocent as our choice in toilet paper can have a negative environmental impact Considering the use we make of toilet paper, is it really essential that the roll be perfectly color-coordinated to our bathroom decor? Or that it be absolutely white? Both dyeing and bleaching create toxic chemicals during manufacturing — truly an unnecessary risk

A Full Season Of Grass Control In Every Micro-Capsule.

If you could look inside a micro-capsule of Partner® herbicide, you'd see something remarkable. A full season's worth of grass control plus the added bonus of superior crop safety.

TIMED-RELEASE, SEASON-LONG GRASS CONTROL IN CORN AND BEANS.

Because of its unique encapsulated formula, Partner "meters out" grass control throughout the growing season. The kind of effective preemergent control you need to stop yield-robbing grasses like foxtails, fall panicum and barnyardgrass.

Plus, the timed-release action of Partner provides maximum crop safety. Especially when young plants are most susceptible to herbicide stress.

CONVENIENT DRY FORMULATION MIXES QUICKLY AND EASILY.

Unlike other grass herbicides, Partner comes in an easy-to-handle dry formulation. And while it mixes quickly and completely in your tank, there are no meters to mess with, no pumps to replace and no containers to rinse.

This year, ask your dealer for timed-release Partner herbicide from Monsanto.

OPINION

The Management Hat

With so many variables in the business of agriculture, it's a struggle, even in a good season, to make a profit. Successful farm operations are run by good managers, and good managers have certain traits in common.

Ed Kee and other members of Delaware Cooperative Extension's newly formed FARM (Family Agribusiness Resource Management) Team have developed a list of qualities they feel distinguish the long-term successful farm operator. They are as follows:

- Good farm managers pay attention to detail and delegate the responsibility of those details to key employees or family members.
- Good farm managers monitor field fertility and make wise choices about manure applications or purchased fertilizer. They recognize that balanced soil fertility is the first step in achieving economical, environmentally sound, productive soil management.
- Good farm managers maintain machinery to avoid costly breakdowns and delays. They plan ahead and give daily attention to equipment, which saves money and time.
- Good farm managers employ timely pest management. They anticipate and immediately act upon disease, insect and nematode problems, which saves money and promotes higher yields.
- Good farm managers practice sound marketing. Though their options often are limited, they find a buyer and ensure dependable delivery of a quality product.
- Good farm managers hire consultants for a range of services from insect scouting to a total farm plan encompassing soil fertility, pesticide recommendations and scouting. They make clear what's expected and recognize when a consultant's recommendations are prudent and reliable.
- Good farm managers make time for family. A commitment to quality family time is established first by working together as a team during the busy season. They understand the need for and respect vacation time, off-season travel and an occasional day off during the season.

A farmer must wear many hats. Banker, Veterinarian, and Agronomist come to mind. But the greatest of these is the management hat. As one farmer told us recently, it costs as much to do a job late as it does to do a job on time. In planting and harvesting the cost is greater when you do the job late. A good manager is needed on every farm.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Understand Shift In Ag Policy

Debate on the 1995 Farm Bill will start soon.

The Farm Bill used to be the only major agricultural legislation in Washington. However, this bill will only be a small part of the legislation affecting agriculture.

The Clean Water Act, The Clean Air Act, Coastal Zone Management, and Food Assistance Act are a few of the new laws directing agricultural policy.

Different groups have become involved in agricultural policy development. Environmental, consumer, and urban citizens have developed an active interest in changing farm policy.

Their interests are in preserving the environment, improving the safety and quality of food, and transferring shrinking federal dollars from agricultural programs to other areas. As a result, farmers need to do a better job of communicating their messages to nonfarmers.

Consumers want more information on how their food is being produced and steps farmers are taking to insure the food they produce is high quality with no chemical and bacterial residues.

Farmers need to do a better job of building coalitions with groups that have similar interests. These include hunters, small business owners, environmental groups, etc.

Finally, farmers need to support organizations and businesses when they need farmers to talk to policymakers.

We have a choice. Either we become more involved in public policy making or someone else will make policies for us.

To Spend Some Time With Family

We have just experienced the 14th snowstorm of the year. These storms have caused much stress, financial losses, and great challenges.

On the other hand, they are providing us with some additional family time.

Why not take a day and spend it with the family?

Consider building snow sculptures and forts, spend time inside reading, putting puzzles together, or making up a play and performing it. These are just a few ideas.

This is an excellent time to renew a family tradition. This is an old-time winter. Our children need to experience the things we did as children.

The important thing is take this time and use it to allow family members to get know each other better with fun.

To Review Grazing Management

During the past several years, livestock producers have shown an increasing interest in the use of pastures to provide a major source of feed for ruminant livestock.

Management flexibility may be the most important concept to maximize forage use in a grazing system, according to Edward Rayburn of West Virginia University.

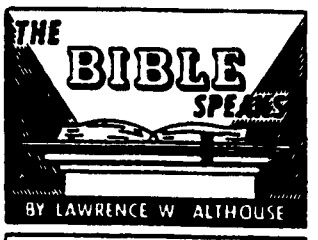
The rate at which forages grow varies during the growing season. On the average, the cool season perennial grasses commonly grown will produce nearly 50 percent of their total growth during April through June. That compares to about 33 percent of their growth during July and August and 16 percent from September through the end of the growing season.

Stockpiling the excess growth during the spring growing period through mechanical harvesting is necessary to maximize livestock feed on per-acre basis. This makes rotational grazing a must.

Rayburn suggests that all grazing systems need an area for feeding livestock during periods when pastures are short of growth or too wet to allow livestock to graze without destroying the paddocks.

For more information on grazing, refer to the 1993-1994 Penn State Agronomy Guide or pick up agronomy fact sheets on forage crop production and pasture management at your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Excellence may be attained if you dream more than others think is practical."



DOES GOD EMBARRASS YOU?
March 6, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 1:1-17
Devotional Reading:
Romans 1:18-25

Writing to the Christian community in Rome, Paul says, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel" (Rom. 1:16). John Knox, who was one of my seminary professors at Union Theological Seminar in New York, suggests that the reason Paul brings up this matter is that he must have experienced some temptation to be ashamed of the gospel. Why else would he make a point of saying he is not ashamed of it? I understand that, for there are times when I, too, am led to affirm the very things with which I have wrestled.

Whenever I read this Pauline affirmation, I end up asking myself, "What about me? Have I been tempted to be ashamed of the gospel?" At this very moment as I write these words, it is easy for me to join with Paul: No, "...I am not ashamed of the gospel." But honesty compels me to admit that there have been times when I have acted as if I was ashamed.

EMBARRASSING CORRUPTION

To be sure, sometimes it has been a matter of being ashamed not of the gospel but of the church. When the church speaks or acts in a way that the gospel is cheapened or corrupted, that is embarrassing. I am still embarrassed by the Inquisition. During the 1940's I was embarrassed for all those in German Christendom who either supported or failed to oppose the Holocaust. I remember back in the 1960's when I felt keenly embarrassed by the churches' indifference and sometimes resistance to the civil rights struggle.

But that isn't what Paul is talking about. He's talking, not about what churches and professed Christians do or say, but about the essential core of Christian proclamation and teaching: salvation by the grace of God as through the cross of Jesus Christ. Have I ever been embarrassed by the gospel itself? — (gospel, an old English term used to translate the Greek term evangelion, meaning "good tidings").

THE IMPLICATIONS

I've thought long and hard on this question and my first inclination is to say: no, not of the gospel itself. But it occurs to me that there have been times when I have been embarrassed, not so much by the formulation of the gospel, as by the implications of it. It is easy and safe to proclaim "salvation by grace through faith," but it is something else to live as though I believe that to be true. If I believe the gospel, then what effect should it have on the way I live my daily life — on the way I perceive and treat other people, on the way I respond to those in need, on the values that I hold and follow, on the goals I pursue, and on the sources to which I look for my satisfaction or deliverance?

The gospel is based upon love, grace and faith and I must admit that, there have been times when I have found this an embarrassment in a culture that is founded upon material gain, worldly success, and popular approval. Embarrassed because love is not "in," I have hastened to agree with other people that love is often not very practical or realistic. I have sometimes bent over backward to conform to worldly standards of success instead of Christian faithfulness. Fearful of being thought "weak" through the practice of Christian grace, I have spoken "tough" to prove to others that I do not let the gospel get in the way of common sense.

Yes, there are times when I have acted as if God was an embarrassment. What about you?

FPPF Polar Power

Keeps Your Diesel Running In The Worst Winter Cold!

Fuel filters, separators do nothing to keep diesel fuel from the waxing or gelling that blocks up and clogs fuel lines and filters.

FPPF Polar Power contains FPPF's Fuel Power and FPPF's Polarized Diesel Fuel Flow Improver, the industry's leaders. It will keep your diesel running in the worst winter cold: lowering the pour-point, totally dispersing water, eliminating gum/varnish...outperforming all other additives and at lower cost.

Lancaster Holstein Tour To Franklin County

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Tour is scheduled for this Tuesday, March 15. They plan to leave the Farm and Home Center at 7:45 a.m. to visit several fine Franklin County farms. The schedule is as follows:

7:45 AM: Leave Farm & Home Center, Lancaster. (BRING YOUR OWN LUNCH.)

9:30 AM: Arrive Fountain Farm and Tower Vue Holsteins, Carlisle. The Harry Thompson and David Walton families have 75-80 registered Holsteins in milk. They have a 73 cow tie stall barn with 6 box stalls and a double 4 milking parlor. The barn was built in 1989. It is the home of the All-Pennsylvania Spring Calf, Tower Vue Counselor Elle. Harry is doing his own embryo transfers with the quick thaw method under the guidance of Dr. William Pettit. They will classify March 2, and have daughters of Leadman, Blackstar, Vanguard and Cleitus. The Waltons have been familiar faces at local and state shows and were featured in the PA Profiles a few years ago. This farm will include a brief stop at their heifer facility approximately three miles from the dairy.

11:15 AM: Arrive Tri-Day Farm, Shippensburg. The Curtis Day Family operates this 60 cow dairy with no outside help. Cows are housed in free stalls, fed TMR at the bunk for 70 lbs. milk and milked in a tie stall barn. BAA is 108 with 8 excellent cows in the herd. Curtis has extensive judging experience and is a candidate for V.P. of the Pa. Holstein Board. Sons Matthew and David were on the winning Dairy Bowl team at the 1993 Nationals. Matthew was high individual and a member of the 1st place 4-H Judging team at the Eastern National, 1993.

1:00 PM: Arrive Tidy-Brook Farm, Greencastle. Mark and Alan Meyers families, with hired hand Joel Mills, run this 85 cow herd with an extensive embryo transfer program. Herd average is 19,700M, 740F & 630P. BAA is 104.8. Seven out of a total of 21 cows in the U.S. over 100# PTA for Prot. were bred at Tidy-Brook. The top 2 cows are Eltons that are still in this herd. This herd is fed TMR in one group with a computer feeder. Cows are housed in free stalls and loose housing and milked in a parlor.

3:00 PM: Arrive Stoner Hijos Farm, Mercersburg. Stoner Hijos Farm is a new commercial facility for 500 cows, currently milking 440 cows 2x. A new Germania parlor includes double 16 milking capacity with rapid exit. Stoner Hijos consists of six brothers with no "outside" hired labor. They farm 1500 acres. Additional features include automatic ally scrapers, four-bay commodity shed, mattress beds and a 500 hog operation.

Moses, Houser To Head State Holstein Board

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Laszlo Moses, Greenville, is the new president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, with Jay Houser, Spring Mills, stepping into the vice-president position.

The pair was elected to head the PHA board during the annual meeting, held February 24-26 at the Gettysburg Ramada Inn.

Moses moved up the officer ranks into the key leadership role following a two-year term as vice-president under retiring president, Lewis Berkley, Berlin. He has served as a state Holstein director, national delegate and on numerous state and local committees.

Laszlo and his wife, Lana, operate a 75-head herd of registered Holsteins and Jerseys on their Mercer County farm, where they began dairying in 1966. In addition to feed crops of hay, corn and soybeans, they operate a seasonal retail fruit and vegetable market from their 300 acres of owned and rented land.

The Moses have five children, four daughters and one son, and one grandson. Their son, Peter, a junior at Penn State, plans to return to the family farm.

PHA vice-president Jay Houser was elected to the second-in-command spot after serving a year on the state board of directors. He has been active in Holstein activities for many years, served as a national delegate, and worked with numerous state and local Centre County club activities.

Jay and his wife, Mary, began dairy farming in 1963 and milk a herd of 70-plus registered Holsteins. Their 280 acres of owned and rented land is cropped in hay, corn, soybeans and wheat.

The Housers also have five children, all still involved in agriculture to some extent. Two daughters farm with their families, one in Minnesota and one nearby in Centre County. Their son has returned to the family's home farm in Spring Mills and two other daughters each help part-time in addition to pursuing off-farm careers.

Incoming PHA president Laszlo Moses, left, presented the past president's recognition plaque to Lewis Berkley.

In a caucus following the annual business meeting, PHA directors, delegates and members elected to support Ronald Wood, Mansfield, in his candidacy for a seat on the national Holstein board of directors. Wood will make a bid for the board opening to be vacated by current director Thomas Kelly, Tyrone, whose term expires. The election will take place during the 1994 National Holstein Convention in Seattle, Washington, in late June.

Members supported three resolutions offered during the business session, including one which would exempt from emergency travel restrictions vehicles transporting feedstuffs, milk and other farm commodities. That resolution was offered in the wake of travel restrictions placed on trucks during recent winter snow and ice emergencies.

PHA members elected to show support for the efforts of the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, which implements the Ag In The Classroom teacher-education efforts. A resolution to support the re-election of Obie Snider, Imler, to the Board of Trustees of Penn State was unanimously passed.

Working with other ag-interest groups within the state, PHA will support the Agriculture Agenda, a statement of policy directed at the long-term preservation of viable agriculture in Pennsylvania. The Ag Agenda focuses on four key concerns: profitability, regulations, the environment, and funding for agriculture education and research.

Two Leadman Daughters Top PHA Convention Sale

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Penn-Gate Leadman Faith, VG-86 at 2 years, topped the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention Sale, selling for $7900 to Lylehaven Farm, East Montpelier, Vermont.

Consignors of the high-selling two-year-old were Steve and Chris Wood, Penn Gate Farms of Littlestown, who chaired the 1994 annual Pennsylvania Holstein Convention held last week at the Gettysburg Ramada Inn.

The Inn's spacious ballroom was the site of the February 26 convention sale, wrap-up event for the convention activities. A total of 85 head went through the ballroom sale arena, averaging $2524. Cattle were housed and on display through the convention at Waybright Farms, operated by the Paul and Mary Waybright family, Gettysburg.

Selling open and ready to flush, Faith carried a contract for $3500 with Eastern A.I. cooperative. Her 2-01 lactation record projection was a 24,366 milk and 1004 fat, with a 4.1 percent test. She carried a CTPI of +1263.

Faith's Penn-Gate-bred Maternal pedigree includes a VG-86 dam by Eagle, with records over 28,600 milk, a 4.3 fat and 3.4 protein test and CTPI of +1149. Second dam was an EX-92 Enhancer daughter and third dam was a EX-94-4E, Gold Medal, Elevation daughter.

Second high seller was Solid-Gold Lead Lou Ella-ET, also a Leadman daughter, scored VG-86 at three years of age. She sold for $5900 to NY Wind Ridge Farms, Madison, N.Y. and was consigned Named PHA Young Holstein Breeders for 1994 were Berks County dairy couple Dave and Phoebe Bitler. The Bitlers will represent Pennsylvania at the June national Holstein convention competition in Seattle.

A whole herd of cow-related and farm-theme handcrafted items generated a lively auction to raise funds for the 1995 National Junior Holstein Convention to be hosted in Pittsburgh.

20,000-pound average. The Beshore Farms herd produced 14 Excellents, 9 Gold Medal Dams, 8 Dams of Merit and 68 cows with lifetime lactations over 100,000 pounds of milk. Merchandising of the herd genetics has put young sires into several AI sampling programs and embryo and live animal exports into many foreign countries.

Beshore was named a Grassland Farmer in 1965 and Master Farmer in 1981. He has served as a director and president of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association and been a recipient of its Charles Cowan award for leadership in the dairy industry. Currently, he chairs the York ASCS committee, remains actively involved in the Grange, and has served on the county's DHIA and Farmers Home Administration boards.

Active in his community, Wayne has been president of the local school board, served on the Fairview Township's planning committee and taken many leadership roles at Newberrytown St. Paul's United Methodist Church. He serves as a local driver for the Meals on Wheels program.

Wayne and his wife, Athena, have four children. Marvin is an attorney, Joy and Kirby are stockbrokers, and Jed is the third generation farming at Beshore Farms.

John Umble's 36-year registered Holstein breeding career began in 1943, with the purchase of his Chester County farm. He developed his noted Swampy-Hollow herd from a foundation cow purchased in the 1950's. At the herd dispersal in 1983, 45 direct descendants of that foundation animal helped generate the state high herd dispersal average of $5,717. Included in the sale offerings were seven Excellents and nine head with lactation averages over 1,000 pounds butterfat. The herd has earned the Progressive Breeder Registry award 13 times.

Umble has served as a national Holstein delegate for many years, as well as state director, county president and director. He was a founding member and president of the Brandywine Valley Breeders farmer-owned, sire-proving group.

For many years, Umble has served on the board of the Maple Grove Mennonite Church and on the board of the West Fallowfield Christian School. He is co-chairman of the Pennsylvania World Relief Heifer Sale.

To Find The Best "Burndown" Herbicide,

It's amazing what turns up when you compare the "roots-and-shoots" action of Roundup® herbicide with a contact spray like Gramoxone®.

ROUNDUP DELIVERS COMPLETE CONTROL OF TOUGH GRASSES AND BROADLEAVES.

Unlike the tops-directed action of Gramoxone, Roundup gets down to the root of your weed problems. In doing so, it delivers complete control of over 100 annual and perennial weeds, including fall panicum, johnsongrass, lambsquarters and marestail.

WITH ROUNDUP, YOU DO IT RIGHT THE FIRST TIME.

Since Roundup gets all the way down to the roots, you won't run the risk of costly re-growth problems. Simply put, Roundup works the first time ~ every time. And that can mean substantial savings compared to follow-up rescue treatments.

Two Named To Pa. Holstein Hall

A $1,000 donation from Huntingdon County Holstein Club kicked off PHA fundraising efforts for the 1995 National Junior Holstein convention being hosted in Pittsburgh. On hand for the check presentation were, from left, national Holstein vice president and 1995 convention chairman John Cope, national director and convention treasurer Tom Kelly, and Huntingdon County Holstein breeders Wayne Harpster, Jim Grove, Galen Baney and John Foster, Jr.

five children. He finds time to help with the present Swampy-Hollow dairy herd, owned by their daughter and son-in-law Sandy and Joe Luby, as well as do some auctioneering, golfing, hunting and fishing.

Young Holstein Breeder award winners Dave and Phoebe Bitler became the owner-operators of Vista-Grande farm in 1987. Their 93-head registered Holstein milking string averages 21,468 milk, 737 fat and 682 protein, with a BAA of 106.1, and earned them their first Progressive Breeder Registry award in 1993.

The Berks County operation also includes 428 acres cropped to corn, alfalfa, wheat and soybeans. Breeding stock sales of 20-30 head, plus the 20-head of dairy beef last year, offer cash-flow diversity. In addition, Dave operates a custom manure-haul service and Phoebe teaches craft "Classes in the Country."

Dave and Phoebe have both served as national Holstein convention delegates, on the state program development, youth and milk promotion committees, and in offices and committee activities of the Berks County club. They were co-chairpersons of the 1991 state Holstein convention and are currently the co-chairs of the 1995 national junior Holstein convention to be hosted by PHA in Pittsburgh.

In 1989, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative named them its outstanding Young Cooperator couple. Phoebe has been named the National Spokesperson for Agriculture by the National Young Farmers Association. Among their other leadership activities have been coaching 4-H dairy judging, Berks County dairy princess coordinator, Young Farmers chapter president and work with their Hope Community Church.

Robert Fitzsimmons, general manager of Lylehaven Farms, told Holstein breeders that merchandising herd genetics "is hard work," requiring time and ongoing efforts in showing and advertising.

Dave and Phoebe have one son, Jesse, and hope he may be interested in a future career in the family's dairy operation. As Pennsylvania Young Holstein Breeder winners, the Bitlers will be entered as state representatives in the national contest.

Two donated embryos were awarded as special doorprizes. Ken and Rose Wenger, Littlestown, won an embryo donated by Robert and Audrey Mong of Franklin County. Sire is Mountain and dam is Afton Spring Tong Sharon, VG-85, with a 2-06 in-progress record to date of 14,420, 4.1%, 593 fat, and 3.5%, 508 protein.

Dr. Dave Morrow, who chaired the Hall of Fame committee, was the winner of the second embryo consigned by Steve Myers, Franklin County. By Counselor, the embryo's dam is Brigeen Hanover Hill Nolie-ET, EX-90, 2E, with a 5-year, 365-day record of 36,670 milk, 3.4% and 1248 fat, 3.3% and 1217 protein.

Festivities for the annual banquet included a visit by 16th President Abraham Lincoln, alias James Getty, and an auction of donated art and handcrafted items that raised more than $5700 to benefit the 1995 National Junior Holstein Convention. High selling-item at $1500 was a glass-front dollhouse furnished in Holstein decor. It was hand-crafted by Lucille Day, mother of Franklin County Holstein breeder Curtis Day, and was purchased by John Marchezak, Bentleyville.

Delegates To Converge On Corning, N.Y.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Some 200 delegates representing dairy farmers from Lake Champlain to the Chesapeake Bay will converge on Corning, N.Y. on March 7-8 for the semi-annual Delegate Meeting of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative.

It is the first delegate meeting that the 71-year-old cooperative will hold in Corning. Based in Syracuse, N.Y., Eastern has 3,200 member farms throughout the Northeast, with the majority concentrated in Pennsylvania, New York, and Vermont.

"The farmer delegates will meet to discuss the co-op's operations, including hearing reports from management on performance in a number of areas," Eastern President Lewis Gardner said. As president, Gardner heads the co-op's board of directors. When he is not working on co-op business, he runs a family farm with his wife and sons in Galeton, Pa.

The delegate meeting will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, March 8, at the Corning Hilton. On Monday, the delegates and their families will tour the nearby mozzarella cheese plant in Waverly, N.Y.

The plant can consume up to two million pounds of milk a day as it produces Italian cheese for a significant portion of the nation's pizza eateries and other restaurants. After the tour, the delegates will be treated to a giant pizza party at the Guthrie Inn in Sayre, Pa., featuring Pizza Hut pizza topped with Leprino's mozzarella cheese made from Eastern's milk.

During the Delegate Meeting, the "Self-Help" dairy initiative will be the topic of a presentation by Bob Gray, the Washington-based executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives.

Area Producers Sought For New Farmers' Market

GOODVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers looking for a new opportunity to retail their products this season are invited to attend an exploratory meeting about a new producer-only farmers' market in Norristown.

To make it easier for farmers to attend, they can plan on attending a meeting at either the Montgomery County 4-H Center on March 22 at 7, or the Goodville Fire Company on Rt. 23 on March 23 at 7 p.m.

Selling fresh produce and other farm products directly to consumers at a new market is a golden opportunity to either expand your existing sales or get started in retail marketing. New farmers' markets in some of our neighboring states has proven to be a wonderful bonanza to both new and existing farmers. Our goal is to create such a market here, where farmers will reap new financial benefits from their efforts.

This meeting will help set the direction of such a market. Farmers who raise fruits, vegetables, herbs, eggs, plants, honey, or any other shelf-stable farm product should attend. They will hear a brief overview of the opportunity and have ample time to discuss it. Details such as rules, products, and sale times will be covered.

This marketing effort is being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA). If you would like additional information about the meeting, please feel free to contact us. Because we are also farmers, the best time to call is in the evening.

Reservations will be needed. Please call Paul or Carol Hauser at (610) 869-2791.

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Membership gains, showring achievements and outstanding overall herd accomplishments were honored at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's annual convention awards breakfast, held February 25 at the Ramada Inn.

Chris and Steve Wood chaired the successful and well-attended Pennsylvania Holstein Convention at Gettysburg, hosted by the eight counties of the southcentral region.

Two Named To Hall

Dr. Dave Morrow went home from the PHA convention with not one, but two, donated doorprize embryos, winning the pair of embryos in two separate drawings. With Morrow was Steve Myers, donor of one of the embryos. An embryo donated by Robert and Audrey Mong was won by Ken and Rose Wenger.

High-selling item at the craft auction to raise funds for the 1995 national junior Holstein convention was an exquisitely-detailed dollhouse decorated in a Holstein theme. John Marchezak held out for the winning bid of $1500, but the miniature house, complete with shelf of trophies, needlepoint cow pillows and a toy farm set, was headed home with his daughter Patty McMurray.

A queen-size quilt, donated by Fred Strouse, Centre Hall, sold for $400 to PHA president Laszlo Moses, Greenville, who donated it back for resale. Second buyer, at another $400, was PHA vice-president Jay Houser, Spring Mills.

Donors of auctioned crafts included Debbie Cornman, Phoebe Bitler, Andrey Mong, Ruby Bollinger, Bonnie Mohr, Brett Ritter, Gerry Seipt, George Cashell, Ida Showaker, Phoebe Bitler, Jane Thompson and Shirley Trimmer, David and Sally Hill, Leslie Rhoades, The Thomas family, Tim and Marcia Brown, Pennsylvania Holstein Association and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

Two Leadman Daughters

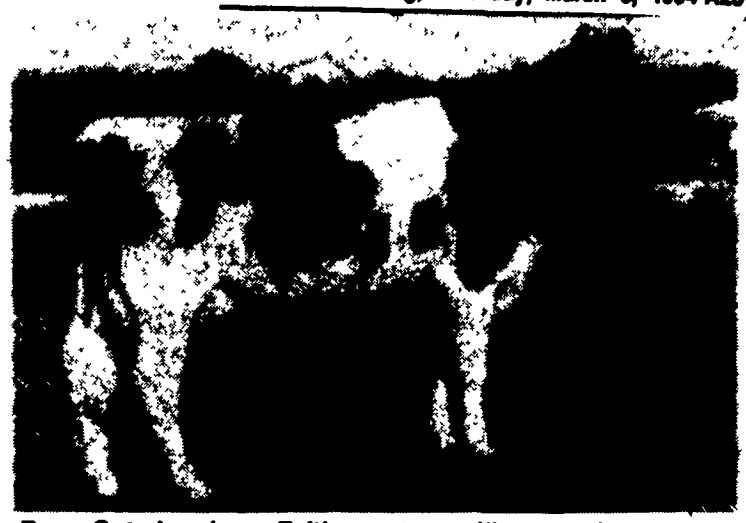
by Michael and Cindy Weimer's Solid Gold Farms, Emlenton.

A $4,000 AI contract went with Ella, whose first lactation record is projected to 26,383 milk, 952 fat and 827 protein, on three-times milking.

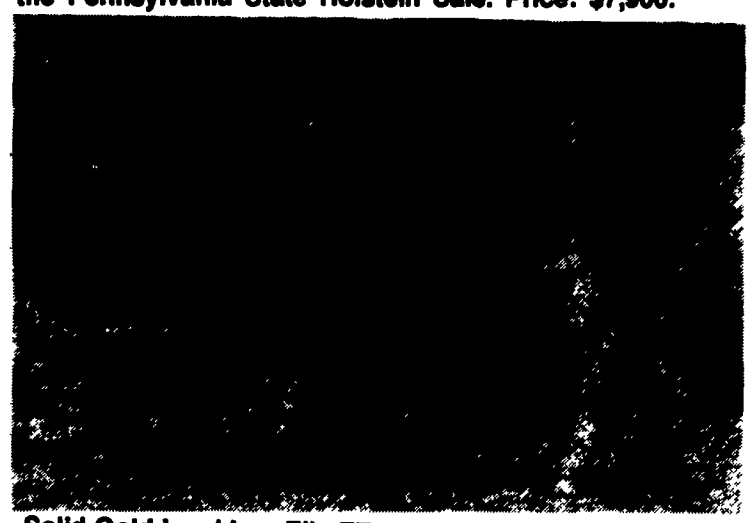
She has a CTPI of +1212. Her dam was a Solid Gold-bred VG-88 Trifecta with a CTPI of —1219 and a two-year-old record of over 29,000 milk and 1138 fat. Grand dam was a VG-88 Stewart, with records over 35,400 milk and 1497 fat, and greatgrand dam was EX-90 with lactation records over 26,400 milk, both bred by Mun-Cre Farms.

Selling in the third high spot was a November-born calf consigned by Mark and Alan Myers' Tidy-Brook Farm, Greencastle. Robert Tucker, Painted Post, New York, was the winning bidder at $5100.

From several generations of Tidy-Brook homebreds, the calf carried a PTPI of +1336. Her dam is a Blackstar daughter, with a two-year lactation record of 24,840 milk, 875 fat and a CTPI of 1355. Second dam is a VG-85 Ned Boy with a three-year, 365-day record of 41,455 milk, 1379 fat and a third-high state protein record of 1349 pounds.



Penn-Gate Leadman Faith was top selling consignment at the Pennsylvania State Holstein Sale. Price: $7,900.



Solid-Gold Lead Lou Ella-ET, was the second high selling consignment at $5,900.

Russelldale Holsteins, Richland.

From some 1,225 head of state registered Holsteins exhibited at state major shows, 53 were honored as All-Pennsylvania for showring achievements. The herd of Gordon and Dorothy Wood, Mansfield, topped the list, taking four of the prestigious titles. Steve and Chris Wood, Littlestown, accepted two of the All-Pennsylvania honors. The remaining awards were split among 42 other exhibitors.

Awards program speaker was Robert Fitzsimmons, general manager of Lylehaven Farms, East Montpelier, Vermont. The noted show and high-genetics herd is owned by Boston attorney and developer Jerry Rappaport. Fitzsimmons emphasized the importance of working with solid, quality cow families and the added value available to herds through the marketing of genetics.

Open to all Pennsylvania 4-H and FFA members, the contest will consist of five divisions: senior and junior 4-H, senior and junior FFA, and collegiate.

The number of entrants per county has changed this year. Each county will be allowed 10 contestants in the 4-H division, and each FFA chapter a maximum of eight.

The entry fee for the Spring Dairy Judging Contest is $4 per contestant and $4 per coach. This fee covers the cost for lunch and mailing contest results.

Entry forms must include the names of all team members and coaches, return address, and phone number.

Send your entry information and fees by March 11 to Jeff Hostetter, Penn State Dairy Science Club, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802. Make checks payable to Penn State Dairy Science Club.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. on the day of the contest, but the entry fee will be $5. For more information or questions concerning the contest, call (814) 863-3914.

The Spring Dairy Judging Contest is an important part of the Dairy Science Club's annual Dairy Exposition, the annual showing and fitting competition among club members. The exposition, to be held Saturday, April 23, also features special events such as a celebrity milking contest, calf dressing, and milk chugging contests. The awards banquet for the dairy judging contest and exposition also will be held on April 23.

The Spring Dairy Judging Contest is being chaired by Jeff Hostetter, a junior dairy and animal science major from Lebanon. Peter Mozes from Greenville, also a junior dairy and animal science major, is assisting Hostetter.

Chester County 4-H Center Dairy Sale

Chester County is finally going to have a 4-H Center. The land has been donated by the Ramano family and now the people of the county are being asked to donate funds to develop the location and construct the necessary buildings. The Center will be located on 20 acres of land along Route 322 in East Brandywine Township between Honeybrook and Guthriesville. The goal is to raise $750,000 for the construction of a headquarters building, five barns and show rings, an outside horse ring, plus driveways and parking. State Representative Art Hershey is heading up the fund raising campaign and close to $300,000 has already been given or pledged.

The dairy farmers of Chester County have decided to have a sale of donated animals, semen, and other dairy-related products as their contribution to this worthy cause.

At the present time, around 40 registered and grade animals have been pledged. Holsteins, Jerseys and Ayrshires are represented. Also, a number of ampules of semen have been donated by various A.I. companies and cooperatives.

Practically all the income from this sale will go to the 4-H Center. Expenses will be minimal because of the generous donation of time and labor by many dairy farmers and 4-H members. Leon Kurtz, Cochranville, will be the auctioneer free of charge, and many vets in the county are doing the required health work at no cost. Sale committee members will arrange to haul the animals free to the sale locations, and the Fairgrounds are being provided at a minima charge. Hay, straw and grain for the sale animals has also been donated.

This commitment by the dairy industry in Chester County shows strong support for 4-H and youth in general. The Center will be used for 4-H club meetings, shows, sales, roundups and other activities. It will eventually provide a meeting place for large Ex-

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

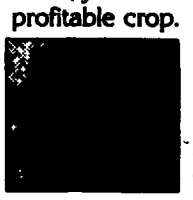
FOURTH YEAR

W-L Competitors

W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.



More than seed... Solutions.

For farmers who may face excesses of manure for their land, redistribution and finding markets may be one way to handle the problem.

Another way would be to seek alternative cropping methods, such as using forages (particularly grasses in a rotational grazing system), according to Dr. Les Lanyon, Penn State extension agronomy specialist.

Lanyon spoke to about 45 farmers at the meeting, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, to update farmers on what their alternatives are regarding nutrient management.

"Forage crops have the potential to use more nitrogen on the farms," said Lanyon. Farmers should first set up a testing program for their manure to determine what they'll need for the crops grown. Lanyon told the swine farmers not to base their tests on assumptions, but to test the manure to obtain information.

Also, crop varieties need to be selected to best match the utilization of those nutrients.

Lanyon spoke about the results of tests that showed that different loads of manure from the same site can vary greatly in all three nutrients — nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium. Also, how that manure is stored and applied can vary the nutrients available to the plant.

Farmers should look closely and monitor phosphorous levels in the soil, because that could be a major concern later on if nutrient management legislation is amended. Pennsylvania could face the same situation as southern states that already limit farmers in the amount of not only nitrogen, but phosphorous, that can be applied to fields.

For now, farmers worried about excess nitrogen could use marginal land as grazing. Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent, spoke about a group of farms in Sampson County, North Carolina (the number-one hog-producing county in the nation, according to Hughes) that make use of intensive grazing technology for stocker cattle.

Sampson County has a total of 146,000 sows that produce about 1.7 million hogs per year. A typical farm has about 1,200 sows, with a contract finisher producing about 2,800 hogs annually.

The North Carolina swine producers use bermudagrass and fescue in their stocker operations, using small paddocks. Tests looked at the quality of the grass as forage and its effect on ADG, which looked good in all the examples of farms using grazing, according to Hughes.

A wide variety of grasses which can use up quantities of nitrogen in manure can be put into place here in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Ken Kephart, Penn State extension swine specialist, indicated "compelling" evidence for using a system of deep pack bedding for grower/finisher herds.

Farmers have a variety of alternatives once a plan is in place to ensure the balance of nutrient needs and environmental stewardship for their high-producing cropland, according to specialists at the Nutrient Management for Pennsylvania Pork Producers on Wednesday at Yoder's Restaurant. Here, Jeff Stoltzfus, Eastern Lancaster Adult Farmer Instructor, right, helps Dave Brubaker, Hershey Ag representative, during the nutrient assessment workshop part of the meeting.

Swine Producers Discover

Normally, a hog will produce about two tons of waste per year. Using a strawdust bedding at 15-25 inches reduces that amount of waste to only about 450 pounds a year — manure and sawdust combined.

The material is basically composted, which would require turning and other management techniques, to ensure that the manure is ready converted and odor is reduced. A drawback is that about 26 cubic feet per meter of air flow would be required per pig per day using the bedding system. The material would have to be mixed at least once a week — which would translate into additional labor hours per day, depending on the size of operation.

Kephart said that this operation is in use in England and other European countries. In this country, the question would be, what about excessive summertime heating?

Kephart said the concept "is neat, but the logistics are a bit of a disaster."

Pennsylvania generates about 28 million tons of manure, with more than half of that generated by the counties in the southeast alone, according to Gerald Martin, associate, Pequea-Mill Creek Project.

Martin told the farmers that "life isn't as simple as it used to be," since World War II, when the advent of cheap, available nitrogen sources boosted crop output tremendously and paved the way for high-intensity livestock production.

Back then, the farm itelf provided all the inputs. But ever since, farms have become increasingly surrounded by urban areas and have easy access to additional feed sources. This translated into additional manure and manure problems.

Farmers need to do more, as part of their social responsibility, to ensure environmental stewardship and achieve the balance necessary for crop nutrient needs.

With the experiences of the Rural Clean Water Project, results indicated that nutrient management plans provide the most effective approach to improving water quality where there was a contamination of groundwater from nutrients, according to Martin.

To help the farmers who attended, a workshop outlined ways in which to see if a balance can be obtained on a farm. The form, reproduced in this issue of Lancaster Farming, can be used if there is an excess of nutrients, or a deficiency in nutrient needs on the farm. This form was prepared by the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension.

On page 1, crop nutrient needs, farmers fill in the spaces marked D, for yield goal and in E, how many acres and multiply those factors based upon crop nutrient needs. On page 2, nutrients produced, farmers fill in D, number of animals in the operation; make an adjustment in E, for number of months out of year that the facility is needed; weight adjust, in F, for more accurate animal weight determination; and then multiply those factors to obtain how many nutrients are being produced.

The final figures subtract what lies in excess because of the legume crops, and then subtracts what is needed from what is produced.

Farmers should start seeking help now to begin writing nutrient management plans. The Lancaster County Conservation District has personnel to write plans for farmers, at this time, for no charge. But that could change in the future.

Showing No Signs, Dairy Herd Can Have Johne's Disease

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A large portion of a dairy herd's stock can be infected with the bacterium that causes Johne's disease without any signs of infection.

Also, Johne's disease can cost producers a great deal of money in lost production, according to experts who spoke on Tuesday during part two of the Lancaster County Dairy Days.

About 250 dairy farmers and industry representatives were provided with information on how to detect and prevent Johne's disease, in addition to a new certification program designed to eliminate the disease from replacement herds.

According to Dr. Ray Sweeney, VMD from the New Bolton School of Veterinary Medicine, Johne's disease affects the lower small intestine of dairy and beef cattle, but it can also affect sheep and goats. The organism which causes the disease is called M. paratuberculosis.

Animals showing clinical signs of infection exhibit weight loss and diarrhea. The cattle cannot make use of feed nutrients and can show extreme weight loss and "bottle jaw." The animal's small intestine thickens up, which keeps the animal from utilizing nutrients.

The real problem lies in detecting it, according to Sweeney. Often, the bacterium can be present on the farm, even with normal-looking animals. But the incubation period, the time for animals to develop symptoms, can take up to 2-3 years or "even longer," he said.

In many cases, the disease is brought to the farm by an animal purchased outside and not checked for the disease.

The bacterium is spread in manure. For Johne's to be stopped, the manure must be handled in such a way to prevent the younger stock from getting infected — calves are most at risk for picking up the bacterium.

In studies, a heavy shedder — an animal that sheds a great deal of the bacterium in manure — can produce up to 3 billion organisms a day, the equivalent to all the blades of grass in a 40-acre field. Animals who are near heavy shedders are susceptible at any age to picking up the disease.

Also, according to Sweeney, the bacterium can last for a long time in the environment. The organism survives freezing temperatures.

The problems can multiply if left unchecked. Once dealt with, the contamination can be very persistent.

The only sure way to detect the presence of the bacterium is to test for it through a combination of blood and fecal samples.

For dairy producers to reduce the risk of contamination, they should know where their source replacement animals come from, and make sure the replacement line for the development of regulations to control the handling and use of nutrients.

The first segment of nutrient control to be addressed is with the management of manure stemming from agricultural operations.

In concept, the Act was created to address the dual problem of an increase in livestock numbers in the Susquehanna River Watershed and a heavy increase in the amount of nutrients being drained into the watershed.

Originally, the decline of the water quality in the Chesapeake Bay — attributed directly to incoming nutrient flows from all the major contributing rivers — was recognized as a problem because of algal blooms, fish kills or disapearances, dramatic changes in the types of aquatic life present, and the formation of a summertime bottom layer in the bay where oxygen was depleted to the point that higher forms of life, such as mollusks and fish, could no longer survive.

Initial analyses of the problem targeted increased agricultural livestock production in the lower regions of the Susquehanna watershed, and, to an extent, some other "nonpoint" sources of nutrients as the culprit for the overloading of nutrients.

Since then, storm water runoff (such as all the runnoff from streets, roofs and parking lots), an assumed large number of old and untested residential on-lot septic systems, and unknown amounts of nutrients being applied to residential lawns and recreational areas, such as golf courses, have come under the scrutiny of those following the development of nutrient controls.

Included in the Act are provisions for the state Department of Environmental Resources to address those issues.

However, with agriculture being the first area of concern, the State Conservation Commission has been given responsibility of developing regulations and for enforcement of those regulations.

The State Conservation Commission was selected as the agency of choice for overseeing the adminstration of the law as a compromise between groups primarily concerned with environmental purity and those primarily concerned with agricultural prosperity.

The commission was initially created as an autonomous agency to oversee the state's conservation districts, which receive funding from federal, state and local coffers.

It was adopted to oversee nutrient management because of farmer distrust of DER. Instead, it was assumed that local conservation district office personnel — who serve as a direct working link between farmers and soil and water conservation practices, among a number of other responsibilities — would act as local administrator of a nutrient management program.

However, local conservation districts do not have to accept responsibility or authority for carrying out the program. The local board of directors for conservation districts will make the decision as to whether or not funding and manpower is adequate to accept enforcement authority from the state.

In the meantime, the advisory board has been busy working with commission staff to recommend, review and comment on proposals for regulations which would ensure that certification regulations are finalized by January 1995, and that nutrient management regulations are finalized by July 1995.

Interim Criteria Approved Changes

One of the first actions of the advisory board was to help create "interim criteria" for the development of a certification program for technicians who eventually will be authorized to create "approved" nutrient management plans.

Those interim criteria are not regulation, but they outline the perceived scope of competencey a person would be required to attain in order to create a valid nutrient management plan.

Currently, those areas of competency focus on livestock and crop agricultural operations and an understanding of the flow of nutrients in an agricultural operation.

According to the Act, the criteria are recommendations to the state Department of Agriculture, which has been given authority to develop a nutrient management certification program.

Proposed interim criteria were approved by the advisory board during its January meeting and published by the State Conservation Commission in the Pennsylvania Bulletin on Jan. 15. A 30-day comment period followed.

(Turn to Page A35)

Plan To Apply Now To Plan Later

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With interim criteria for creating a nutrient management certification program intact and progress in creating the final program underway, those who would seek to become certified can begin seeking applications for interim certification, according to state Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff.

Under the state Nutrient Management Act, the state Department of Agriculture is to create and administer a nutrient management certification program. It is to follow the guidelines included in interim criteria, which were approved with modification Wednesday by the Nutrient Management Advisory Board to the state Conservation Commission.

In a statement released Wednesday, Wolff said, "The final certification program is currently under development. This year we will focus on educational programs for those who qualify for interim certification."

According to the statement, interim certification will help identify persons interested in seeking certification as Nutrient Management Specialists when regulations are finalized. The regulations are scheduled for finalization in January 1995.

During the interim, or precertification period, trainig is to be offered to enhance knowledge of nutrient management and conservation practices planning.

According to Wolff, those who apply to the PDA for interim certification will be notified directly when and where training will be available.

Furthermore, during a Wednesday meeting of the Nutrient Management Advisory Board, it was announced that Penn State Cooperative Extension is planning to do some extensive training in this area, incorporating the use of telecommunications, such as is being used with those enrolled in the continuing education required under a certification program for licensed pesticide applicators. That program is also administered by the PDA.

According to Wolff, for more information about the nutrient management specialist certification program, or to get an application for interim certification, contact Lee Bentz, in the PDA Bureau of Plant Industry at (717) 787-4843.

Bradford County Holds Dairy Day

About 350 attendees listen to the agricultural topics at the recent Bradford County Dairy Day.

ANDREW BURNS
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Bradford County Dairy Day was held recently in the main auditorium of the Troy Middle School.

There were more than 350 attendees, of which 229 were farmers. They spent most of the day listening to the programs, visiting exhibitors, meeting with friends, and enjoying lunch at the adjacent cafeteria.

The morning program featured William Menzi of Cornell discussing the pros and cons of manure storage and Dennis Buckmaster of Penn State on large round bale storage.

The afternoon program featured discussion on BST. Jacob Guggey, Bradford County agent, and Jeff Harding, Monsanto, Inc., spoke about BST issues and answers. As expected, there was considerable interest in this subject and many discussions among the listeners.

Amy VanBlarcom, Bradford County dairy princess gave a presentation on her activities. She was followed by Scott Wolrath, Mary Barrett, and Stacy Hulslander, 4-H leaders, who spoke on 4-H activities.

Mark Madden, an extension agronomist, will be working for Bradford and Susquehanna counties. He called attention to the upcoming Bradford County Agronomy Day on March 15 at the Wysox Fire Hall in Wysox. Interested parties should contact the Bradford County Extension Office for more information.

animals are certified Johne's-free. If using in-house stock, the calves must be removed from the maternity area as soon as possible — the bacterium can be present in the milk of the infected dam. (Also, the bacterium can spread throughout the dam and embed itself in other tissues, and the bacterium can be transferred to the unborn calf.)

Producers need to focus a greater amount of attention to the calves in this critical, early postpartum period, said Sweeney, and put them on colostrum or milk replacer that is bacterium-free.

Producers need to keep their equipment clean, in addition to the facilities. The bacterium can spread easily, especially when using a front loader to supply feed and haul manure without cleaning the equipment.

Bulls also can spread the disease. The bacterium can survive in semen.

They key to fighting the disease, according to Sweeney, is to realize that the more concentrated the organisms, the greater the chance of spread. Sanitation and proper management of calves will ensure that the concentration is kept to controllable levels.

A producer panel drew on some of the experiences that Lancaster County dairy farmers had with treating Johne's disease on their herds. Both herds have managed to control the disease through careful management of stock and using biosecurity — santitation and clean equipment. Also, producers must protect access to water sources and feed to make sure those do not become contaminated with the bacterium.

Millie Widmann, a dairy farmer in Oxford, and Larry Harnish, who farms in Washington Boro, dealt with Johne's disease a few years ago. Widmann said that an animal they purchased in 1981 spread the infection throughout her farm. In 1983, she began working with New Bolton Center. Of 42 samples taken late that year, 16 came back positive. Working closely with New Bolton, they were able to rid the bacteria from the herd through careful cleanup of hutches, equipment, and separating the mature animals from the calves. It took them six years to have their first negative test in 1989. They continue to test twice a year.

Harnish operates a small, closed herd. Harnish said that he didn't see visual signs of the disease, and only through testing did they find evidence of Johne's in their herd. He wanted to stop Johne's before it became a problem because he sells replacement stock.

Herds can become certified free of the disease through the Pennsylvania Certified Paratuberculosis Test-Negative Herd Program. Dr. Robert Whitlock, DVM, New Bolton School of Veterinary Medicine, spoke about the state program.

On evidence garnered from New Bolton Center, lost lactation dollars alone per cow could be nearly $400 on an annual basis because of Johne's. Also, increased vet and wasted feed costs point to the need for producers to rid Johne's from the herd.

The certified program in Pennsylvania began in 1992. The program does not guarantee the herd will be free of Johne's, but that it will test negative, according to Whitlock.

For producers to become involved, they should first speak to their veterinarian. A cooperative agreement must be signed, and other details worked out. The important thing to remember, according to Whitlock, is that it takes time to rid the herd, and producers must be cooperative and patient in order to completely treat the disease.

Production Increases

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during January 1994 totaled 858 million pounds, 1 percent above last year's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 650,000 head, down 4,000 head from December and 6,000 fewer than January 1993.

Production per cow averaged 1,320 pounds in January, 25 pounds more than December and up 30 pounds from January a year ago.

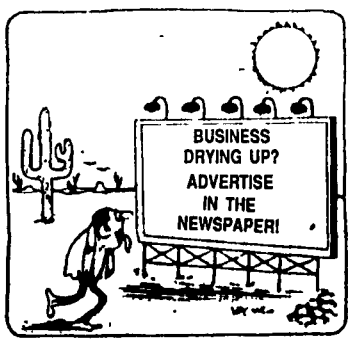
Pennsylvania's milk production for 1993 totaled 10.2 billion pounds, 2 percent less than the 10.4 billion produced in 1992.

Pennsylvania ranked fourth in milk production for 1993. The average number of milk cows during the year was 650,000, which is 15,000 fewer than the previous year.

Production per cow during 1993 totaled 15,677 pounds, compared to 15,823 pounds during 1992. There were 13,000 milk cow farms in 1993, 1,000 less than during 1992.

Milk production in the 21 states surveyed during January 1994 totaled 10.6 billion pounds, 122 million pounds less than the same states in January 1993. December revised production at 10.5 billion pounds was 2 percent below December 1992. The number of milk cows averaged 8.04 million head, down 2 percent from a year earlier, while production per cow averaged 1,319 pounds, 14 pounds above January of last year.

Total U.S. milk production in 1993 was 151.0 billion pounds, down less than 1 percent from 1992. There were 9.71 million milk cows during the year, compared to 9.84 in 1992. Average milk production per cow for 1993 was 15,544 pounds, 135 pounds more than the previous year.



Dairy Refund Deadline March 15

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County ASCS Office is currently issuing refunds for amounts deducted from 1993 commercial milk marketings under the Dairy Refund Payment Program (DRPP).

The program is authorized under the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993.

Paul Kline — chairperson of the Lancaster County ASC Committee, said any producer who provides evidence that they did not market more milk in 1993 than in 1992, or if they went out of the dairy business during the refund period, did not market more milk for the same days and months of 1992, will be eligible to receive the entire amount deducted from their milk proceeds if he or she meets the eligibility requirements and claims the refund by March 15.

Under the DRPP, milk producers requesting a refund must establish their milk marketings for the refund year, 1993, and the immediate preceding calendar year, 1992, before the refund request is made. Refund request must be made by March 15.

The 1990 Act calls for an 11.25 cents per hundredweight reduction in the price received by producers for all milk produced and marketed for commercial use in calendar year 1993.

This amount was increased on May 1, 1993 by 5.1 cents per hundredweight, for a total of 16.35 cents per hundredweight, to compensate for refunds paid under the 1992 program. This rate remained in effect through October 1993.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 provided for a 10 percent decrease in the amount of the reduction in the price received by producers during November and December 1993, for a total of 14.71 cents per hundredweight.

NMAB Approves

The result of those comments was a modification of the interim criteria.

According to a summary of changes provided at the Wednesday meeting, wording was changed slightly:

- So that the interim criteria are specific in stating that the criteria are only to be used by the Department of Agriculture in developing a certification program;
- So that the basic components of a plan identify nutrient sources, instead of "all" sources;
- That it identify those nutrient sources available "to be applied," rather than just available; that nitrogen "be the nutrient of primary concern" and other nutrients "will not be considered nutrients of primary concern;"
- So that if the use of additional Best Management Practices (BMPs) as defined in the Act are needed in developing a nutrient management plan, that that facet of the planning can be done by a nutrient management specialist, or in cooperation with others "with recognized conservation planning expertise;"
- So that the word "Ordinances" is dropped from the section heading under the interim criteria, "V. Laws, Regulations — ". The reason for this was because under the Act, local nutrient management ordinances can not be passed that are more stringent than state law.

(However, it was discussed briefly Wednesday that, while local ordinances may not "prohibit or in anyway regulate practices related to the storage, handling or land application of animal manure or nutrients, or to the construction, location or operation of facilities used for storage of animal manure or nutrients or practices otherwise regulated by ..." the Act, there is still the possibility of local ordinances controlling some things which are yet to be tested, such as height of a building in the vicinity of an airfield, etc. It was said that such gray area may ultimately have to be determined through the courts.)

Proposals Rejected

The Advisory Board rejected by show of hands a series of proposed amendments to the interim criteria submitted by board member William Brubaker, representing the fertilizer industry, that would create additional certification programs and levels, specifically for "Agronomic Nutrient Management Planning," and "Erosion and Sedimentation Control Planning."

Brubaker submitted the proposal under the heading of the Pennsylvania Agronomic Products Association, and said that his concern was with potential legal liability for a nutrient planner who created an inadequate plan in the areas of erosion and sedimentation.

In a previous meeting, Brubaker had submitted the recently created Certified Crop Advisor Program as a template for developing a certification program for nutrient management specialists.

(As a sidenote, being a certified crop advisor doesn't require expertise in erosion and sedimentation.)

That unrelated program was developed by a nine-member committee of the American Society of Agronomy, upon which Brubaker was a member. Others who also helped develop the Certified Crop Advisor Program who also are involved with the nutrient management specialist program include Michael Krempasky, executive director of the State Conservation Commission, and Richard Duncan, with the state USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

First Look At Regs

For the first time, the advisory board reviewed draft regulations for nutrient management. Up until this time, the board dealt with the guidelines from which regulations would follow.

In distributing the draft, Krempasky asked that board members wait until the next meeting to start discussing minutiae, in order that major problems could be identified and recrafted by the next meeting.

The outline headings of proposed regulations included General Provisions, Mandatory Nutrient Management Plans, Nutrient Management Planning, and Animal Storage Facilities.

The eight pages of proposed regulations were marked on each page with the large capitalized word, "DRAFT," and a note stating that the preliminary draft was for discussion purposes only and was prepared specifically for this week's meeting.

These first proposed regulations deal with some of the basic overviews of regulatory language, such as definitions, scope, purpose, general requirements of nutrient management plans, identification of concentrated animal operations, and then a section on plan content.

The board expects to continue on the proposals in more depth at the next scheduled meeting, set for April 13, also in Room 309 of the PDA headquarters building in Harrisburg.

As part of consideration for regulations, board members were also given a draft of animal equivalent units for livestock; a backround paper on the Pennsylvania Technical Guide, which is the primary reference for the Soil Conservation Service; and copies of standards for "waste storage ponds," as contained in the technical guide.

Farms Can Sign Up For Free Publicity

PDA To Publish Directory

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff is looking for farmers who market their products directly to consumers to be included in a new consumers' guide to Pennsylvania farm markets scheduled for release this summer.

"Many people want to get agricultural products right from the producers, but they don't know where to find them," Wolff said. "This new booklet will help to make both residents and visitors aware of the many products that are available directly from our producers."

To be included in the directory, farmers who sell their products directly to consumers must complete an information sheet describing the farm and the types of products that are sold.

Penn State Cooperative Extension Offices in each county will be assisting with the project.

Farmers who sell directly to consumers and who have not received a form by March 29 should contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Division of Commodity Promotions at (717) 787-5086 to have a form mailed to them.

Grass Is In At Plum Bottom Farm

Michigan State, the strings of my heart played the right note, and I had a desire to keep the soil where it belonged. I had a desire to utilize the moisture as it ought to be used. And I had a desire to help the environment and the streams. Forages and grasslands on my land made sense."

At the time, farm input costs were low, and the research of the day showed zero grazing to be the most economical way to farm. And the new 150 freestall barn with open columns for ventilation and a drive through center to accommodate forage feed wagons was built as a show structure for what Penn State was able to do for farmers. Trench silos and a liquid manure system were also a part of the new farm operation.

At the time, Rodgers was president of the Penn State Ag Advisory Council, and in 1969, the council met at Plum Bottom to show what the people at Penn State did in terms of formulating feeds, storage, and design. Liquid manure handling was relatively new. The whole operation was built around the newest research that at the time showed the best way to handle cows was with zero grazing. Farm inputs were cheap and machinery costs less expensive.

Ayrshires was started in 1986 with the purchase of open heifers. Since Rodgers likes to use his avocation as an instructor for the Dale Carnegie course in his farm pursuits, the Ayrshire herd became the focus of promotional efforts. From nothing to the current DHIA year-end record of nearly 18,000 pounds of milk and nearly 700 pounds of fat, Rodgers has been promoting his herd. Consignments to state and national sales has been one method used. In addition, Plum Bottom had the grand champion Ayrshire at the 1993 State Farm Show and the reserve grand champion and the junior champion at the recent 1994 State Farm Show. Recently Atlantic Breeders purchased the January bull calf from Alfadale Gem Stone out of Plum Bottom Legends No (VG, 2Y). The granddam is the Madge's Bay daughter that made 4y 31,475m 3.7f 1121f in the Plum Bottom herd.

The dairy operation built around zero grazing carried into the present herd until 1990. But research now shows that rotational grazing is a more viable method to handle the dairy herd because of the present day high input costs. Once again Rodgers used the recommendations gathered from Penn State research for the basis of change. With three years experience on a rotational grazing program, the Plum Bottom dairy herd is living proof the system works.

Before the pasture system was adopted, production on 27.7 Ayrshire cows was 14,506m 482p 584f. In the current program with pasture, 38.2 cows averaged 17,239m 606p 674f. But the real story is in reduced inputs. Total feed cost per cow dropped from $1152.00 to $988.00. The feed cost/wt. milk went down from $7.94 to $5.73. The capacity needed for manure storage went down from 600,000 gallons to 400,000 gallons.

"The big difference is in inputs," Rodgers said. "We have a 60 hp tractor now. We did have a 120 hp tractor. And we got rid of a forage harvester and a number of forage wagons. To me, growing crops on the land is one thing, but now I need to do it at least cost. The grazing aspect as demonstrated to me has great potential."

Plum Bottom Legends No is the VG 2-year-old dam of the January bull calf purchased by Atlantic Breeders. The next dam is the EX Madge's Boy daughter that made a 4-11y 31,000m record in the Plum Bottom herd.

The belief in this potential has even changed the career direction of son Jim. For eight years after college, Jim pursued his interest in professional baseball. The sports adminstration graduate program at Penn State introduced him to an internship with the Chicago White Sox. Later he managed a minor league affiliate of the Kansas City Royals in Appleton, WI, and by early 1993 he had moved to work for the Marlins expansion team in Florida.

"In our family we were taught, and my father emphasized, that you should get done what you want to get done," Jim said. "This attitude left me free to go into baseball, which I enjoyed. I wasn't good enough to play professionally, but I went about getting a master's degree and became a baseball coach. But in the back of my mind, I always knew the farm was here. I am the ninth generation here, and I see a lot of merit in keeping the farm productive."

A big event happened in Jim's life in 1993. He became engaged and was married in November.

"When I got engaged, I began to realize that in baseball it was tough to put down roots. I knew I didn't want to live in Florida. So we made the decision to come back to the farm in Pennsylvania and start married life here.

"We considered many different enterprises that could be done here, but the more we investigated the possibilities of raising heifers the more we liked it. Our plans are to buy yearling heifers, breed them, and offer them for sale just before they freshen.

"We have our work cut out for us, but we believe the freestall barn, the acreage, and the commitment to intensive grazing has a lot of merit. The way our minds are directed we are very excited about it."

Plans at Plum Bottom call for a 26 acre field out from the barn to be divided into acre pasture lots with permanent fence around the outside and electric fence to divide the center area into acre sections. Rodgers believes 120 heifers can be pastured together in the program by allowing the herd to graze one lot for only 24 hours at a time. More than three weeks will have passed before the heifer herd is back in the same pasture lot.

In spring the excess forage will be stockpiled for winter in the form of haylage and large round bales of hay.

"When I first came back, I didn't realize the farm would make such an impact on me," Jim said. "But as we worked through what can be done on this farm, I got charged up. It's like coming back to my roots. I really never thought of making this career change until I got back here and got my hands, my feet, and my back into working on the farm again. Then it began to formulate, and with this heifer project, I think we have a sound financial plan. So everything came together."

In the fall, the dairy herd of Ayrshires, which is housed on a neighboring farm, will be sold at what the elder Rodgers calls an accomplishment sharing sale. This is all part of the plan to promote and merchandise the herd.

"I like dairy cows," John said. "I have had two Ayrshire herds and one Holstein herd. But I don't think a dairy cow is an end in itself. They are part of our effort to promote.

"When I started this herd of Ayrshires, part of my interest was merchandising and marketing. So we are going to sell 75 head and keep 15 or 20. Eight pairs will be sold with the buyer to take choice. However, five older cows and five younger heifers will be kept. We will have a much smaller herd then, but Charles Pent from Connecticut is coming to run the dairy and will bring his small herd of Ayrshires along to join our smaller herd."

Rodgers sees his participation in both the state and national forage and grassland councils as part of his efforts to obtain information, meet people, and give back to others some of the things he has received. He is a charter member of the Pennsylvania group and is a past president. When he started to attend national council meetings, only university and industry people were represented on the board of directors. Through input from Rodgers, that has not changed, and producers are represented in equal numbers with the other two segments of the council.

As it happens, Rodgers is the first producer president of the National Forage and Grassland Council in the year when the council celebrates its 50th anniversary. This happens at the Host Resort east of Lancaster on Route 30 beginning Sunday evening through Wednesday night.

This "Golden Opportunity" will feature a lot of things you want to know about forages. And you can be sure every attempt will be made to get the word out that grass is in.

The Longer You Wait To Control Quackgrass, The More It Will Cost You.

A wise man once said, "He who hesitates is lost." That's why it makes sense to stop quackgrass early with Roundup® herbicide.

WAITING CAN COST YOU MONEY.

Rescue treatments can cost up to twice as much as Roundup. Even then, they don't deliver the same complete, consistent control.

WAITING CAN COST YOU YIELD.

If you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. In fact, tests show that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. That's because quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE.

This year, stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. Ask your dealer for the early, economical control of Roundup herbicide.

Always read and follow label for Roundup herbicide. Roundup® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company © 1994 Monsanto Company RUP-4 2082

Infant Diagnosed With Cancer Survives

Jonathan—A Symbol Of Hope To Cancer Patients

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Cancer. The word strikes fear in every parent's heart. It was the word that Barry and Linda Bruce heard applied to their 9-month-old son almost five years ago.

Fortunately, for the Bruces, their story has a happy ending. Jonathan is now an energetic 5-year-old. The only trace of his brush with cancer is a jagged scar that stretches across his tummy.

Jonathan's story is one that offers hope to others in this month that the American Cancer Society designated as Daffodil Days. The daffodil is recognized as the first flower of spring and a symbol of hope — hope that cancer can be cured.

Cancer was the last word that Linda expected to hear the morning that she took her plump, healthy baby for his nine-month checkup.

But as the doctor's hands paused on Jonathan's stomach during a routine exam, he felt a mass in the baby's abdomen.

"I was thankful that my husband always made it a point to take off from his job and go along on doctor's appointments," Linda said. Immediately the Bruces took Jonathan to Lancaster General Hospital for an ultrasound.

"When the technician did the work, then brought in a second person and nobody was talking — I knew it was bad news," Linda recalled.

The word the pediatrician used was foreign to Linda but one that she perceived signaled cancer — neuroplastomia.

The couple were aghast that cancer could happen to them. "I had been a fanatical about following all the rules during my pregnancy," Linda said. "No alcohol or smoking. Fresh green, leafy vegetables four times a day. I even left the room if someone started to smoke...."

The same day that the doctor found the mass, Jonathan was sent to Hershey Medical Center.

The next few days were a blur of frequent blood tests, X-rays, a CAT scan, bone marrow tests, urine catherization, and injection of radioactive dye to detect the extent of cancer.

To hold an active 9-month-old still for testing proved impossible until Linda, in desperation, climbed up on the examining table to nurse him.

"When you are in a hospital setting and away from every other parenting influence, you learn to focus on the needs of your child and listen to yourself.

"I learned how indispensable faith is," said Linda. She and her husband found the clergy supportive and used every avenue of prayer offered by friends, family, church, and the hospital.

"My husband is Catholic, I'm Episcopalian, and a friend Jewish

Seize the moment and enjoy it fully is the the philosophy of Linda Bruce who shares a funny moment with sons Jonathan, 5, and Christopher, 3. Jonathan, seated, had been diagnosed with a form of cancer when he was 9 months old. Now fully recovered, he is a symbol of hope that cancer can be cured.

Daffodil Days Aids Cancer Patients

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The American Cancer Society recognizes the daffodil, as not only the first flower of spring, but the symbol of hope — hope that cancer can be cured in our lifetime. The Lancaster County Unit of the American Cancer Society will hold Daffodil Days from March 22 through 27. Funds raised during this week will help provide transportation, medication, and nutritional supplements to the cancer patients in the county.

This year, a bunch of 10 daffodils can be purchased for a contribution of $5. Spirit of Hope bouquets will also be available for $10. The bouquets include five daffodils, with fern and baby's breath. Spirit of Hope Bouquets and orders of 25 or more bunches will be delivered on Wednesday, March 23 to any worksite or location in Lancaster County.

The daffodils will be available at a variety of day-sale sites across the county, during daffodil week. Deadline to preorder daffodils is Friday, March 11. To find out day-sale site locations or to place orders, please contact the American Cancer Society at (717) 397-3744. For counties outside of the Lancaster area, check the phone directory for the local listing of the American Cancer Society.

Jonathan, right, and his brother Christopher share favorite playthings. Like typical brothers their behavior alternates between sibling loyalty and merciless teasing.

This Spirit of Hope bouquet is available for $10 and will be delivered anywhere in the county on Daffodil Days. A bunch of daffodils will be sold for $5.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Be prepared.

Good advice for Boy Scouts, Good advice for anyone. Especially good advice if you must travle in the unpredictable weather of this first quarter of 1994.

Looking over the situation at hand, how glad I was to have heeded that advice. My three-inch-hihg-heeled dress shoes were not going to be much protection in the six inches of heavy, wet snow covering the airport's parking lot. But just three stretching, chilly steps should put me at the car door.

And on the other side of the locked door waited a pair of calf-high boots. A heavy winter jacket. Sweatpants, gloves, earmuffs. In the car's trunk was a shovel and salt.

The door and lock were only wet, the heavy snow barely crusted with a seal of ice. The key slid in easily and the door swung open. Within a few minutes, more adequately booted and bundled up, I had cleaned the heavy wet snow from windows, hood, and headlights and thankfully headed home.

Easier than the few weeks before, when a similar time and place scene had played out. But colder temperatures and a reversal of precipitation patterns had then sealed the car with a solid coating of ice covered with several inches of fluffy snow.

While the lock wasn't frozen, the door was. It took repeated frim yanks to break the door's icy seal, hoping something didn't break in the process. Finally, again booted and bundled, I'd hunted the one tool that would help dig through the ice crust and snow cover while the car's heating system began to warm the interior.

The ice scraper fished from under the front seat is a heavy-duty one, with a curved shape for a better scraping angle and a wide five-inch blade edge. I began carefully chipping away at the snow, frozen mess enveloping my little car, remembering a news article on the recent epidemic of broken windshields from overzealous, ice-scraping efforts.

That ice scraper was my lone tool and security blanket for the task. By the time most of the thick layer of snow lay on the pavement below the car, the inside heating was beginning to slightly loosen the undercoating of ice. After some 20 minutes of scraping and heating, the windows were clear, ice removed from the hood so it wouldn't crash into the windshield headed down the highway, and the wipers safely swept from side to side.

Funny, I've used that scraper only twice this winter, both times on that airport parking lot. And on the day before leaving home that first time, I'd gone to the car for my ice scraper always kept under the seat. It wasn't there.

See, it's also my tool of choice for scraping away the layer of silage dust that builds up periodically on the outside of some of the dairy barn windows. I'd gone looking for the scraper on that day in late January to clean a row of barn windows. And the ice scraper lay on a shelf in the barn office, right where I'd left it nearly a year ago while planning to do more windows later. So much for being carefully prepared for winter driving.

But why? On the very afternoon that I most needed to discover that my ice scraper was not in the car, why was I moved to undertake the disliked, messy cleaning job — done at best once a year — that would direct me to where it really was?

I know what I believe. And it gives me goose bumps every time I think about it.

Don't Let Fast Food Devour Your Diet

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Did you know that about 40 percent of all American food dollars spent on eating away from home go to fast-food restaurants? The speed and convenience offered by these inexpensive eateries are tempting to lots of families with children involved in after school activities. With the restaurant industry increasingly catering to health-conscious consumers, an occasional fast-food meal need no longer blow an otherwise healthful diet out of the water.

You can still order a high calorie, high-fat, high-sodium meal, but some new menu items are offering more healthful choices. Baked potatoes, prepackaged salads and salad bars, skim milk, low-fat yogurt, broiled chicken, and low-fat meat choices now provide some flexibility in quick dining.

Penn State Cooperative Extension agent, Annette Goodling, reminds us that most of the fat and calories in fast foods come from the sauces, toppings, and dressings. For example, a quarter-pound ground beef patty with American cheese and mayonnaise, along with mustard, lettuce, tomato, and onion on a bun, contains 510 calories and 30 grams of fat making this product 53% fat. The new dietary guidelines suggest we aim for 35% fat making the above sandwich a poor choice. The same hamburger minus the ounce of cheese and without the 1 tablespoon of mayonnaise has 310 calories and about 10 grams of fat providing 29% fat. (Keeping it within the 35% guideline.) To keep the fat and calories down choose:

* pizza with vegetable toppings such as mushrooms and green peppers instead of pizza with pepperoni, sausage, or extra cheese
* broiled burgers or chicken on a whole-wheat bun instead of supersized double burgers, fried chicken, or fried fish
* lettuce and tomatoes instead of tartar sauce, mayonnaise, or specialty sauces
* lowfat or skim milk instead of shakes and soft drinks
* lightly buttered English muffins instead of Danish pastries or pie
* plain baked potato with small amount of margarine instead of "twice-baked" or topped with cheese, sour cream, or bacon bits
* vegetable salad with low-fat dressing instead of vegetables mixed with croutons, cheese, nuts, and bacon bits topped with full-fat dressings

Checking the nutritional information charts or pamphlets now available at many fast-food restaurants can be a real eye-opener. Use the fat, calorie, and sodium tables to make sure you're getting what you think you are, especially if you eat at fast-food restaurants frequently.

Often people pick chicken and fish sandwiches thinking they're more healthy than a hamburger, but if they're deep fried and served with tartar sauce or mayonnaise, they can have significantly more calories and fat than a plain ground beef patty. But what if you just can't resist the taste of all that fast food? Go ahead and order a double cheeseburger with fries, but split one order between two people. If you're still hungry, fill up on a low-fat frozen yogurt for dessert.

The Cherished Wedding Gift

A Symbol Of Hope

— we asked everyone to pray. We figured we needed all the help we could get," said Linda.

Although it was difficult dealing with the stress of a diagnosis that shattered the family's day-to-day lifestyle so quickly, it was hearing the other children on the ward cry that Linda found so devastating. Their stories were so heartbreaking.

Doctors encouraged Linda and Barry to sit in on a parents' support group that met at the hospital.

"When we are in situations like that, we tend to wallow in our own horror story and grief," Linda said. But as she listened to other parents tell of dealing with life-and death illnesses, Linda was amazed at the compassion these parents showed toward each other.

"One mother's 7-year-old had been hit by a car and was brain dead. She needed to decide when to remove life support, yet when they called to say Jonathan was being taken to surgery, she had the presence of mind to turn to me and say that she hopes the operation goes well for my son," Linda said.

Jonathan's surgery required a day-long operation to remove an adrenocortial tumor, formed on top of the gland that sits on top of the kidneys. It is a rare tumor that had grown into the size of a baseball in Jonathan's small stomach.

The doctors have no explanation for this type of tumor. Although the Bruce family was assured that this type of cancer is definitely not hereditary, Barry's uncle recently died from it. The doctors said the coincidence is a rare fluke of nature, and not a sign that it is hereditary.

Surgeons were able to completely remove the tumor from Jonathan and no chemotherapy or radiation therapy was performed.

"After the operation, there was no guarantee that it would not return or anything. No one had any real answers at that point and it was not reassuring," Linda said.

She saw that she had a choice. She could either worry that the tumor would return or learn to live one day at a time without borrowing trouble from the future.

"I absolutely learned to enjoy each moment, to focus on what we have and not on the way I wish it would be," Linda said.

Jonathan returns for testing on a regular basis. Each test is clear, a reassuring confirmation that all traces of cancer are gone. Now Jonathan receives only annual testing.

Since then, the Bruce's had another child, Christopher, who is now 3.

"I held my breath during his 9-month-old checkup," Linda said.

Both sons are sources of endless energy and a delight to their parents who said the experience has caused them to enjoy each day more fully.

While most people perceive cancer to be a greater fear than normal day-to-day living, Linda points out that no one has the promise of tomorrow or a guarantee of anything.

She said, "You never know who could have an accident or get sick. We can only do our best and leave the rest to God."

Linda, who is a home economist and was director of the Lancaster Better Business Bureau for 10 years, is now a full-time mom and an accredited volunteer leader for LaLeche League. Her husband has his own advertising business.

I absolutely learned to enjoy each moment, to focus on what we have and not on the way I wish it would be.

Nuts About Peanuts And Peanut Butter?

Peanuts are frequently referred to as nutrition in a nutshell. Peanuts are 26 percent protein and contain no cholesterol. Unsalted, they qualify as a low sodium food. They supply dietary fiber. In fact 2 tablespoons of peanut butter has as much fiber as two slices of whole wheat bread and supplies 15 percent of an adult's daily protein needs.

The world was first introduced to peanut butter at the Universal Exposition of 1094 in St. Louis, when C.H. Sumner sold $705.11 of the treat at his concession stand.

Since then, the uses for peanut butter have skyrocketed. Its versatility is demonstrated by the recipes that follow.

2⅓ cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons milk

Blend together butter, peanut butter, and cloves. Gradually add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Yields: Frosting for 2 dozen cupcakes or 2 8-inch round layer cakes.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Home Economist

Finfish has traditionally been a food that is eaten more often during the Lenten season. More recently, fish has been recognized as a nutritious food to eat weekly because they have a good source of protein and are generally low in fat, calories, and sodium.

According to the Pennsylvania State University, there is mounting evidence that fish may have additional health benefits.

Fish contain polyunsaturated fats made up of omega-3 fatty acids. Research suggests that these omega-3 fatty acids may offer some protection against heart disease and certain disorders of the immune system such as arthritis.

Many health food stores, pharmacies and supermarkets are selling fish oil supplements containing high levels of omega-3 fatty acids. Although the research is promising, most nutrition experts feel there is still not enough evidence to recommend the use of these supplements by the general public.

The effects of omega-3 fatty acids on the body is not yet completely understood and consumption of a highly concentrated form of these oils may have unanticipated side effects.

There are certain risks associated with consuming these supplements, such as excessive bleeding and serious bruising. Their use may also increase the body's requirements for vitamin E. Since there is no monitoring agency to insure quality, they could be contaminated with dangerous chemicals and toxic amounts of vitamins A and D.

In addition, the supplements are concentrated oils making them very high in calories. Until there is more information about fish oil supplements, it is best to use these products only with medical supervision.

Fish is still an excellent food choice. The safer, cheaper, and delicious way to obtain the health benefits of omega-3 fatty acids is to eat fish at least two times per week.

The following are some common fish that range from the best to fair sources of omega-3 and total polyunsaturated fat.

• EXCELLENT (two grams per 100 grams) - Atlantic mackerel, spiny dogfish, herring, Atlantic salmon, chinook (King) salmon, lake trout, lake whitefish.

• GOOD (one to two grams per 100 grams) — Anchovies, blue fish, catfish (channel), mullet, smelts, rainbow trout, albacor tuna, salmon (chum coho pink sockeye).

• FAIR (less than one gram per 100 grams) - Cod, flounder, red hake, Pacific halibut, ocean perch, pollock, red snapper, whiting.

Brochure For Homemade Gift Ideas

ARLINGTON, Va. — To extend the traditionally high butter use time during the holiday season, the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and Dairy Promotion, Inc. developed a leaflet featuring 'buttery' rich recipes for foods that make great gifts all year round. The leaflet even includes tips for wrapping the food gifts and pointers for cooking and baking with butter.

The recipe leaflet, "Delectable gifts for all occasions," was part of a packet distributed to 800 dairy merchandisers and consumers affairs specialists in major supermarket chains. The packet included recipes, a food photo, camera-ready art and background information about butter that can be reproduced in various store newsletters and ads. Supermarket personnel can order additional copies of the recipe leaflet and recipe cards to be given to shoppers. They also can order a repeating video demonstrating how to make flavored butters to show in the store for passing shoppers.

Each year, the National Dairy Board distributes two supermarket kits with free dairy information materials tailored to a certain subject. Supermarket personnel can order unlimited quantities to use in providing information to their customers.

"Recent declines in the price of butter make promoting it a good opportunity," says Maynard Lang, Iowa dairy farmer and chair of the National Dairy Board's Public Relations Committee. "Since butter has become more price competitive with other products, we might be able to entice a lost generation of consumers into trying butter in a variety of foods. Once they try it, butter's superior flavor is sure to build user loyalty."

The "Delectable gifts for all occasions" kits were mailed in January. The National Dairy Board has fulfilled orders for over 500,000 leaflets and recipe cards.

"We (National Dairy Board) are glad to see the interest in these materials publicizing butter, especially since two organizations worked together," Lang said of the partnership between the Board and Dairy Promotion, Inc.

For a free copy of the leaflet, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: National Dairy Board, "Delectable Gifts," 2111 Wilson Blvd., Ste. 600, Arlington, Va. 22201.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, consisting of 36 dairy farmers from across the U.S., develops and implements a coordinated effort of promotion, research and communications to strengthen the dairy industry's image in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

PEANUT APPLE BUTTER BLAST

2 tablespoons peanut butter
2 tablespoons apple butter
2 slices white bread

Spread one slice of bread with peanut butter. Spread remaining slice with apple butter. Sandwich two slices together.

BROWNED BUTTER BUNS

1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs
1 egg yolk
3½ cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup coarsely chopped peanuts
¾ cup white raisins
Brown butter glaze

Dissolve yeast in warm water in a large mixing bowl. Add sugar, salt, egg yolk, butter, and 2 cups flour. Blend ½ minute on low speed, scraping bowl constantly. Beat 10 minutes on medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in remaining flour, nuts, and raisins. Cover dough and let rise in warm place until double, about 1 hour.

Stir down by beating 25 strokes. Cover lightly and refrigerate up to 48 hours. (When you want warm buns, bake as many as you need or you can bake them all at one time). About 1 hour and 30 minutes before serving, stir down dough. Drop dough by scant ¼ cupfuls 3-inches apart onto greased baking sheet. Cover and let rise in warm place until double, about 40 minutes. Heat oven to 375 degrees, bake until golden brown for 15 to 20 minutes. Spread brown butter glaze while still warm.

To serve, cut pie into wedges. Drizzle warm chocolate sauce over each slice and dollop with whipped cream. Serve immediately.

ANSWER — L. Smith of Harrisburg wanted a recipe for raspberry angel food cake. Thanks to Martha Martin, Mount Joy, who writes that you can make it by using your favorite angel food cake recipe. Just before pouring the batter into the pan, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons dry raspberry Jell-O. Swirl. Pour into angel food cake pan and bake immediately. Other Jell-O flavors may be substituted for other colors. Gail Diller, Hagerstown, Md., writes that she folds 3 tablespoons Jell-O into the batter. Also, thanks to Kathleen Brandt, Millersville, who writes that she adds raspberry extract and a few drops of red food coloring to cake batter. If you prefer, flavor only part of the batter and swirl it into the regular batter before baking.

ANSWER — Joy Klein, Telford, wanted to know how to make wine vinegar from red or white wine. Also, she would like recipes using fresh herbs to make flavored wine vinegar. Thanks to Gertrude Haas, Lenhartsville, and to Susan Howard, Mt. Pleasant Mills, for sending recipes.

Wine Vinegar

1 cup wine (not sweet)
3 cups cider vinegar

Combine wine and vinegar and let blend for 2 weeks. To make herbal wine vinegar, add 1 cup fresh herbs (any kind) to 3 to 3½ cups vinegar.

To use dry herbs, use ¼ cup and heat vinegar until warm and store in covered jars for 4 weeks in dark place.

Gertrude prefers using tarragon, thyme, basil, and garlic. Tarragon vinegar, she writes, works well to make cole slaw and pepper cabbage.

Tarragon Vinegar

3 tablespoons tarragon leaves, bruised
½ clove garlic
2 whole cloves
1 quart cider vinegar

Combine ingredients in a jar with tight lid. Let stand 24 hours. Remove the garlic, tighten lid again and let jar stand 12-14 days in a warm place. Strain vinegar into a sterilized bottle with a tight-fitting cork. Store in cool, dry place.

Uses for tarragon vinegar:

Add a dash to sour cream for baked potatoes, to cream sauce for asparagus and artichokes, to fish, soups, and chowders, to salads and salad dressings. Mix a few drops with several drops of olive oil and sprinkle over sliced tomatoes.

Rosemary Vinegar

10 to 12 sprigs fresh rosemary
1 quart cider or white wine vinegar
½ teaspoon sugar

Combine in a jar and screw lid on tightly. Turn jar upside down on lid and let stand overnight. Continue to turn jar daily for two weeks. Then remove rosemary sprigs and add fresh sprigs. Also, add another ½ teaspoon sugar. Repeat the turning process for 10 to 12 days. Strain into a sterilized bottle with tight fitting cork. Store in a cool, dry place.

Try rosemary vinegar on salads, particularly on potato salad. Sprinkle on French fries and fried potatoes.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A New Holland reader, with an old-fashioned smokehouse wanted instructions for smoking turkey. Thanks to Fay Leslie, Woodstown, N.J., who has an old-fashioned smokehouse and frequently smokes both chickens and turkeys. Also, thanks to Loretta Kurt, Allensville, and Ruth Ann Fosselman, McAlisterville, for sending recipes.

Smoked Turkey

Build fire in fire pit. Use cherry, apple, or sassafras wood. Choose a day that is cold and quiet. Wind removes the smoke from the smokehouse and warm weather might allow the meat to spoil. Adjust lid on fire to maintain smoke production.

Remove giblets, etc., from bird cavity. Make a noose of a light rope and secure it well around 1 leg of each bird. Pull tight. Hang birds on hooks not over the fire pit to stay cooler.

Check the fire regularly (about every 30 minutes) to keep building filled with smoke. Smoke turkeys approximately 6 hours, chickens for 4 hours. Freeze immediately for later use. Salt and pepper to taste when cooked.

Fay writes: Be prepared for many people knocking on your door to say the outhouse is on fire! Wash your hair!

Smoked Turkey Brine

For each four quarts water, add:
1½ cups curing salt (Morton)
½ cup brown sugar
3 cups cider
½ teaspoon ginger
3 tablespoons black pepper
½ cup lemon juice
½ ounce maple flavoring

If using frozen turkey, thaw completely. Mix all the ingredients in a non-aluminum container that is large enough to submerge the bird. Simmer over medium heat 5 minutes per pound. Remove bird from brine and allow to air dry one hour. Rub skin with brown sugar. You will need a drip pan. Smoke 1 hour per pound basting with melted butter every 1½ hours. Use hickory flavored chips for smoking. Remove turkey and place in roasting pan and cook in 300-degree oven until done. The bird should look a rich golden brown and the leg joints should move freely in their sockets. The meat can be frozen. Loretta uses an electric smoker.

Certified Canada Geese Often Outwear Welcome

Pat Durkin
National Geographic News Service

CHANTILLY, Va. — Jetliners thunder overhead. Cars swish by. It's a far cry from the wild.

But the hubbub doesn't faze several hundred Canada geese that have made their home in a shallow pond surrounded by highways and hotels on the approach to Washington Dulles International Airport.

The flock has lived here for nearly 10 years, despite numerous attempts to relocate it. The swan-size, gray-and-black birds forage on highway median strips or waddle among airport motels looking for guests willing to part with their breakfast.

The birds are part of a mushrooming community of Canada geese believed to be descendants of birds raised by humans years ago. They don't mind people, machines or noise. They don't migrate; they find a spot and stay put.

In the decade that citified geese have been multiplying, wild flocks in the Atlantic flyway have declined by a third. Two reasons for the decline, experts say, are several poor nesting years in the arctic and reduced habitat caused by human encroachment.

At the same time, ironically, urban flocks of varying size have settled in cities all over the United States and in parts of Canada and the British Isles. The birds have moved onto golf courses, corporate ponds and school campuses — almost anyplace with open grassland and a bit of water.

Inspiringly graceful in the air, Canada geese on the ground are noisy and messy. The only thing that distinguishes the city dwellers from their country cousins is temperament.

In small numbers, the domesticated geese delight nature-starved urbanites. But without the greater dangers of living in the wild — predators and food shortages, for example — urban goose populations have exploded. East Coast cities alone are home to more than a million Canadas, 50 times more than a decade ago.

"They've been allowed to reproduce and reproduce," says Martin Lowrey, Virginia director of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Office of Animal Damage Control.

As flocks grow, so do complaints. Canada geese have fouled beaches, contaminated drinking-water supplies, created aviation hazards, ruined wetland-restoration projects and infrequently attacked humans who didn't offer them food or came too close to their goslings.

Limited hunts have been tried, especially on golf courses, where geese tear up greens. But most urban flocks live in areas that are too populous to allow shooting.

A host of other anti-goose techniques have been explored: prohibiting feeding, replanting roosting areas with high grass that makes the birds wary of predators, crisscrossing wires over ponds to hinder take offs and landings, harassment by trained dogs, tethered balloons painted with huge eye spots, and the use of explosives.

A young wader offers food to a Canada goose at Lake Tahoe, California. Increasing numbers of Canada geese are making themselves right at home with people in populous areas of the United States and parts of Canada and Great Britain. As the flocks of domesticated geese grow, so do complaints.

In the past decade the Canada goose population has exploded in parts of North America and Great Britain. Numerous strategies have been tried to thin the flocks, but they're generally been unsuccessful. While non-migratory urbanized birds have been multiplying, migratory wild Canada geese have declined by one-third.

Most efforts have met with little success. "These geese don't care what you do, they just stay," says Lowrey, whose office is inundated with complaints about 30,000 Canada geese that live in the densely populated Virinia suburbs outside Washington.

Most complaints, he says, are minor. But some are serious. Guests at an Alexandria hotel have been bitten by irritable geese. Feeces from a flock of 1,200 geese that roost at a Fairfax County sewage-treatement plant recontaminate water newly purified for re-release into the environment.

Complaints increase every year, says Lowrey. But there's only so much his agency can do. Migrating birds, including Canada geese, are protected in the United States under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, whether they actually migrate or not. Any efforts to control Canadas, from culling flocks to forcing the birds to leave on their own, must be approved by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"We're all hostage to the service," Lowrey tells National Geographic, echoing a complaint from local officials who deal with seemingly intractable Canada goose problems.

Fish and Wildlife officials admit that they've been overly cautious about issuing permits to control Canadas. They're concerned that efforts to control urban geese will counter efforts to recover wild flocks, a higher priority.

Attempting to address both problems, the service has put strict bag limits on geese taken during the regular hunting season, while at the same time allowing special goose-hunting seasons during a few warm weeks in the spring and fall when migratory flocks remain in the arctic.

But it's almost impossible to please everybody.

Hunters say the bag limits are too strict. "Now people don't think we have any geese." says Randolph Murphy, who runs a hunting-guide operation in Tilghman, Md., on the Chesapeake Bay. "They've ruined a million-dollar business on the Eastern Shore."

Local officials complain that special seasons do little to get at the toughest situations, which occur in urban areas.

Tennessee may be the only state that has profited from the new regulations. Promoting itself as a goose hunters' paradise, the state transports nuisance birds from urban areas to huntable lakes just before the special season opens.

"An unmitigated outrage," says Holly Morgan, a wilflife activist in Arlington, Va. "They'd never get away with it anywhere else."

Wildlife professionals look down their noses at people like Morgan, but activists play an increasing role in wildlife debates.

Until recently, urgan goose problems have been a problem mainly along the Atlantic flyway and around the Great Lakes. But rapidly multiplying urban flocks are spreading to the Midwest and beyond.

Golfers in Reno, Nev., and northern California have begun goose battles. New flocks are turning up all along the Northwest coast.

The Fish and Wildlife Service, under increasing pressure to do something, this spring will consider policy changes that would allow cities or counties to decide how to handle nuisance geese situations.

"I think we can craft something that will address the issue before it becomes a nationwide problem," says Paul Schmidt, chief of the service's Office of Migratory Bird Management.

But Martin Lowrey doesn't have much hope for community-based solutions.

"Anytime you let the whole community decide, nothing happens," he says. "The people dealing with the problem are always a minority. The others always vote in favor of the geese."

As the family living program assistant at Berks County Extension, Patricia Gallo (Trixie) heads a group for stay-at-home mothers called Moms-at-Home.

Moms-At-Home Organize Monthly Get-Togethers

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — A growing number of moms are opting to put their careers on hold and stay at home to raise their children.

"While some people view this exodus back to home as a backward trend, it isn't," said Patricia Gallo (Trixie) who is a family living program assistant for Berks County Extension. "Instead it offers the option for women to choose to stay at home or have a career without feeling guilty."

With this decision, many mothers face new obstacles because they are — well — unique.

They usually hold a different perspective on many issues than moms who juggle both career and home responsibilities. They often feel alone in their viewpoints and miss the camaraderie they had shared with fellow employees.

One mother who gave up her career as a biological research scientist to raise two children called the Berks County Extension and asked, "Where is a support group for full-time mothers?"

She was new in the area, away from parents and friends. She wanted to meet other women, like her, who were devoted mothers, and faced adapting to a family income that was cut in half from giving up her job.

Trixie, as she prefers to be called, said that this was the first call she received in her job as a family living program assistant for the Berks County Extension. Surprisingly, one week later, a second call came in for an identical request from a woman who did not know the first caller.

Trixie decided to meet with the callers and discuss some of their concerns.

The most prevailing concern seems to be the desire to meet other mothers like themselves.

In the next extension newsletter mailing, Trixie included a little write up about mothers who stay at home. She added a clip and mail coupon and asked if there were other mothers interested in joining a support group.

Twelve mothers wrote to say they were interested. To plan a support group, Trixie asked the respondents why they decided to stay home, frustrations they faced, and why they thought they could benefit from a support group?

"Child care is a large issue," Trixie said. "Who pays and what is proper care? The government has fantastic ideas but assume all mothers are working. They aren't. These are the mothers we want to reach."

Trixie set up her first meeting in July with the woman who had called in with the original request for a support group.

Together they came up with ideas and a format for a support group. They decided the group would meet once a month, alternating between day and evening meetings.

The day meetings would be held in a home or at a park or play area where mothers would bring along their children. Trixie would distribute parenting information and an informal exchange of ideas would be shared. Some subjects would deal with keeping children busy, self-esteem in children, nutritious snacks for children, and subjects the group suggest.

The evening meeting would be a sit-down meeting that focuses not on mothering but on being a woman.

Trixie said, "The problem these women expressed is that they often become so wrapped up in being a mother 24 hours a day, that the woman inside — the spouse, the lover — tends to get buried.

Women's self-esteem is one subject for an evening meeting. This week an evening meeting was held with the theme on "Fanning the flames to keep romance alive in marriage."

"Often, when children come, the first thing to go is romance," Trixie said.

The women filled out a survey that asked them to rate on a scale of 1 to 10 how they rated their romance b.c. (before child) and a.c. (after child).

The participants shared tips they found that worked in adding more romance in marriage.

"Although a lot of parenting material is available from Penn State Extension, not much is published on subjects such as romance," Trixie said.

She researched the subject, and found the 14 women who attended the meeting were eager to share their ideas.

"I'm amazed," Trixie said of the participants' bonding. "The group just clicked from the beginning. I've never seen a group of individuals click together so quickly."

The first meeting had only three participants, the next 14, and now there are 70 women who asked to be on the mailing list.

Despite this positive growth, Trixie said that there are many things that still need to be worked out.

For the day meetings, the group needs a large place where children can play with the other children. Trixie is looking for a hostess that has a large play area or has access to a community building or park.

There is no charge for the meetings at this point, but a minimal charge may be needed in the future to pay for the mailings.

A great concern is that Trixie's job with the extension is only part time and is funded on a non-permanent basis.

"I am not an extension agent but a family living program assistant," said Trixie who graduated from Liberty University with a B.S. in home economics. She began working for the extension in July 1993.

Trixie and her husband recently celebrated their second wedding anniversary.

"I was raised by a mom who stayed at home, and my husband and I decided that when we have children, I will be a stay-at-home mom. However, we both decided that it is important for me to focus on career for quite a long time before we have children."

Berks Countians who are interested in the Moms-at-Home support group or to arrange a speaking engagement, should contact Trixie at (215) 378-1327. Those outside of Berks County should contact their county extension office listed in the phone directory under Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Brothersvalley FFA Names Award Winners

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Above 200 persons braved icy roads and snowy whiteouts to attend the annual Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA banquet held here at the fire hall. It was an evening where numerous chain reaction collisions kept area emergency and fire crews and police personnel stretched beyond their limits.

Tim Clites of Berlin, RD 4, was surprised to hear the FFA officers say he'd been chosen as this year's honorary member. Clites and his son, Scott, who was also awarded the American Farmer award, own and operate Bree-z-hill Farm in Brothersvalley Twp.

Clites received an associate degree in electrical/electronic technology from Penn State. He holds membership in the state and national Holstein Associations, is an Agway committeeman and a DHIA director.

Sue, Clites' wife was present to witness her husband receiving the 39th honorary chapter degree. Their daughter, Jill, this year's FFA Sweetheart was also present.

Eric Landis, Bryan Sarver, and Jonathan Smiley, who placed first in the state demonstration contest at Harrisburg during the Pa. Farm Show, had a captive audience as they demonstrated "Life Saving Knowledge" on three dummies. They used an adult, a child and an infant to illustrate the life-saving procedures.

The winning team is already booked through May to present the demonstration to groups in surounding areas.

Guest speaker was FFA state president, Andrea Noll. Using a personal experience, Noll told about nearly giving up on FFA while a high school spohomore. Wise words from an advisor caused her to reconsider her decision.

Getting involved is what made the difference, she said. "Grab the opportunity," she told the group.

State agricultural record book contest winners were Eric Landis, Jason Baughman and Justin Miller.

Landis won two gold medals for On-Farm Work Exp. 400 hrs. and under; a silver for swine finishing; a bronze for rabbits. Landis is also received a $50 Savings Bond from Farm Credit.

Baughman got a bronze for dairy calves and heifers; Miller, a bronze for On-Farm Work Exp. 400 hrs. and under.

State pins were awarded to Jason Baughman, Allen Durst and Matt Coleman for achievements at Penn State Activities. Durst and Coleman won gold and Baughman won a silver medal.

The one-acre corn growing contest gold medal winners (134-160 bushels) were Steven Platt, first; Jonathan Smiley, second; Jason Ickes, third and Jason Baughman, fourth. The top three received trophies from W. J. Brant, Pioneer Seeds.

Keystone Farmer degrees recipient pins went to Jason Baughman, Eric Landis, Michael Griffith and Bryan Sarver.

Chapter FFA Degrees went to Jonathan Dickey, Bruce Hartman, Justin Miller, Adam Shaffer, Daryl Smith, Blaine Shroyer, Brian Gary, Spencer Glessner, Scott Shroyer and Eric Smith.

Chapter scholarship pins and certificates went to Bruce Hartman, Joshua Koval, Adam Shaffer, Michael Griffith, Eric Landis and Sam Petro.

County agricultural record book contest winners were, first place in various categories: Jason Baughman, Jonathan Smiley, Eric Landis, Michael Griffith. Placing second in various categories was Brian Gary, Matt Coleman and Jason Ickes.

Ther winners were Justin Miller, Daryl Gindlesberger and Adam Shaffer. All the winners received checks.

FFA basketball coach Robert Czekaj received a special presentation from Milton Snyder and also presented pins to basketball players. They were Mike Griffith, Bryan Sarver, Shawn Fochtman, Justin Miller, Matt Coleman, Bob Gindlesberger, Milton Snyder, and Heath Berkey.

Czekaj also presented FFA volleyball pins to Doug Bell, Lonnie Coughenour, Bryan Sarver, Jonathan Smiley, Brian Gary, Chad Boburchock, Bob Gindlesberger, Justin Miller and Milton Snyder.

Regional plaques and checks were presented to Berlin-Brothersvalley Young Farmer members: Dennis G. Hay, over 30; Terry W. Landis, under 30 and the Community Service award, to Barry and Diane Bittner.

Receiving special certificates of appreciation for their encouragement, cooperation and assistance to FFA members, were Shirley Landis, Jayne Platt, Bonnie Murphy and Sue Walker.

Toastmaster was chapter president, Eric Landis. Jason Ickes, reporter gave the annual activities report. Matt Coleman had the invocation.

Doyle Paul is the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA adviser. He currently is being assisted by Michelle Tracey.

Ice Cream Promotion Offers Recipe/Coupon Booklet

ARLINGTON, Va. — In a promotion uniting the National Dairy Board, American Dairy Association (ADA) and the International Ice Cream Association (IICA), consumers will be encouraged to stock up on ice cream during March — National Frozen Food Month. A one-page insert will appear in Sunday newspapers on March 6, kicking off the promotion.

The newspaper insert will reach 58 million readers. Another 29 million consumers will see a similar advertisement/insert in March issues of many women's service and general interest magazines including TV Guide, People and Woman's Day.

If consumers send UPC symbols from two ice cream products (pints, quarts, half-gallons or 4+ packs of novelties) and the cash register receipts for those products which must be purchased in March to: Ice Cream Treats & Savings, P.O. Box 7149, Young America, MN 55573-7194, they'll receive a free "Great American Ice Cream Treats & Savings" booklet. The booklet contains recipes using ice cream and coupons for other products that go into making delicious ice cream treats.

Partner companies in the consumer promotion include Smucker's Toppings, Keebler Cones, Quaker Oats 100% Natural Cereal, Reese's Peanut Butter, Cake Mate Decorating Products, Dole Tropical Fruit Salad, Kraft Marshmallows, Reddi Wip and Sunbeam-Oster Appliances. They will provide the coupons in the booklet and cover redemption costs.

The IICA has been encouraging ice cream manufacturers to help extend the promotion in stores, and ADA informed the grocery trade of the promotion.

Besides the retail consumer promotion, the National Dairy Board will kick off anohter campaign in March. However, this ice cream promotion will target the foodservice channel.

"Consumers spend nearly half of their food dollars out-of-home, and the foodservice channel (i.e., restaurants, hospital cafeterias) accounts for about 60 percent of all ice cream sales, so this is another important market to hold onto and expand," said Bill Underwood, New York dairy farmer and chair of the Board's Advertising & Sales Promotion Committee.

Instead of only running ads in foodservice trade publications as it did in the past, the National Dairy Board will join Hershey in providing merchandising materials like menu clips/inserts and posters, since ice cream is rarely promoted at the point of sale in foodservice.

Ads featuring an offer for the merchandising materials and recipe contest will appear in issues of Restaurant Business and other trade publications from March-August.

Besides covering 40 percent of the tab, Hershey's sales force will provide additional support to the foodservice promotion, leveraging the dairy farmer checkoff. Hershey's sales force will work directly with foodservice suppliers and operators, providing the personal contact that will help this program succeed in selling more ice cream.

Farmers Needed To Grow Flax

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PITMAN (Schuylkill Co.) — "Farmers considering an alternative cash crop to traditional grains are encouraged to consider raising fiber flax," Johannes Zinzendorf said.

The company that he represents, Flax America is looking for farmers who are willing to plant 5-acre test plots of flax this growing season. The company will provide free seed of two varieties and the specialized harvesting machine that is required.

Fiber flax is processed to make linen, an increasingly popular clothing fabric.

According to Zinzendorf, Pennsylvania was a large flax producing state before the Civil War. Then the state processed more than four million pounds of finished flax annually. As southern cotton prices continued to drop because the cotton gin cut labor costs, flax was no longer competitive and Pennsylvania farmers turned to raising grains.

Flax American wants to change that. They believe that Pennsylvania can once again become a major flax-producing area. Flax American located in Rowayton, Connecticut is a subsidiary of a French Company. It also has successful flax projects in Maine, Connecticut, and Texas.

Currently the flax is shipped to France for processing, but a U.S. flax mill is being built to process the fiber into thread for national and international markets.

Zinzendorf said that flax is sown with a grain drill and requires no more work than growing wheat. It's planted around Good Friday.

"It grows so thickly that it chokes out weeds. It's insect and weed free when planted with a grain drill," Zinzendorf said.

Three months after planting, it is pulled with a flax pulling machine that the company provides free of charge. The flax machine pulls the flax out of the ground, ripples off the seed pods similar to a threshing machine. The flax falls back on the ground where it lays for one month during the retting process, when the natural glue binding the fiber to the stalk is weakened to allow the flax fiber to be more easily separated from the plant. The flax is

Shedding Light On Farm Electrical Safety

COLUMBIA, Mo. — If you live on a farm or ranch, chances are you rely on electricity for many of your daily chores. From the lights in your barns to the motors that run ventilation fans, crop dryers and feed-handling equipment, you depend on electricity to get the job done.

But are you getting the job done as efficiently and as safely as possible?

Farm electrical systems require as much—if not more—attention as those in homes and businesses. Because of exposure to the elements, equipment that is acceptable for use in the home is unsafe in many farm applications. Moreover, even proper wiring and equipment tends to deteriorate more quickly under the conditions found at many sites on the farmstead.

An annual review of a farmstead electrical system will indicate whether improvements should be made or, in extreme cases, whether the entire system should be replaced.

The first step is to confirm compliance with the National Electrical Code (NEC) to assure proper wiring. The NEC also requires a ground-fault circuit-interrupter (GFCI) on many farmstead circuits, and farmers where required. GFCIs help protect people from lethal shock.

Also, make certain there is proper grounding throughout the system and check for loose connections, missing panel covers, overloaded equipment, brittle wiring, dust and moisture.

The following checklist can be used to review electrical systems and determine whether improvements are required. Any items answered "no" are possible problem areas.

—— Was the system installed by a licensed electrician?
—— Is electric equipment dry and free of corrosion?
—— Are all conductors, fuses and circuit breakers the proper size and approved type?
—— Are lights in farm buildings enclosed by globes or guards?
—— Do motors have correctly sized overcurrent protection and are they rated for farm duty?
—— Are all motors totally enclosed?
—— Does each motor circuit have overload protection?
—— Is there only one electrical supply service entrance for each building and is it located in a clean, dry area?
—— Are all electrical cables (conduit) surface mounted along major structural members?
—— Are all outlets, switches and other devices surface mounted for easy inspection and maintenance?
—— Do ventilation fan and motor circuits have disconnects located within sight of the motor?

More detailed information about electrical system on farmsteads is available in the Agricultural Wiring Handbook, an 88-page guide produced by the National Food and Energy Council. The handbook was updated in 1993 to conform with the latest NEC standards.

To obtain a copy, contact the NFEC at 314-875-7155 or write 409 Vandiver Drive, Suite 4-2-2, Columbia, MO, 65202. The cost is $7.50 per copy, including postage and handling.

JOHN DEERE 92- TO 145-HP 7000 SERIES TRACTOR

"This is the first tractor that'll do about everything I want it to."

"It's a big tractor with small tractor maneuverability. My 110-hp 7600 seems just as maneuverable as the 90-hp 4040 I used to use.

"It's got the power, too. While running a heavy 4-bottom roll-over plow, I tried to lug down my 7600. But it just kept plowing.

"And I can operate this tractor more hours without getting tired. One day, after a full day of work, I got out of my 7600 and still felt refreshed enough to shovel a load of oats.

"Another day, I chopped 25 acres of corn stalks and raised such a cloud of dust I couldn't see the neighbor's house. Yet not a speck of dust entered the cab or got on my clothes. And the visibility from my 7600's cab is perfect for seeing both the rows and the 3-point-hitch attachments. No blind spots."

Forrest Wessner, Jr. tried out a 7000 Series Tractor before buying one for his farm. Test drive one for yourself and see if you agree that, "This is the first tractor that'll do about everything I want it to do."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Ordinarily I would have my garden planted by the end of March. But, today as I write this the ground is still covered with snow and ice. Actually we've been so busy with various meetings that it is hard to imagine finding time to plant a garden.

Last week we attended a meeting on irrigation of farmland and heard the rules and regulations that apply to farmers. There was emphasis on the amount of water that flows into the Susquehanna River and the amount that is removed. I had not realized that the city of Baltimore has a pipeline from Conowingo Dam to their city. The potential capacity of the line is 500 million gallons per day. Everyone's need for water seems to grow and grow. Now instead of a bath once a week some folks take a shower twice a day.

We attended a travelogue on Italy in a local high school. It is so much easier to do arm chair travel than to do the planning for a plane, train or ship vacation. Although, I find that the memories do not last as long if you do not personally experience the countries' landscape and people.

Last month our square dance group had a large attendance. Instead of two or three squares we had more than 50 people. Maybe they were glad to be able to get away from home between snow storms. It is one affair that you can attend when you are tired from a day's work and after expending a lot of energy come home less tired as the music is so lively.

Over the weekend our daughter and her young son from New Jersey visited us. The grandchildren look forward to visiting our dairy farm when they come to Lancaster County. Sometimes they are lucky and not only find cows, calves, and cats but also pigs, a lamb, and geese. The farm is so very different from their home surroundings.

then bundled by machine and samples are mailed to France for inspection.

Farms producing quality flax will be asked to grow a minimum of 25 acres of flax in 1995 with a promise that it will be purchased by Flax America.

Although Zinzendorf did not diclose a price, he said it is comparable to other grain prices. He promises that the contract drawn up between the company and farmers will include a specified price so that no speculation is involved.

"The market for linen is growing at a fast rate, which is why the company is searching for more land to grow it," he said.

After the flax is harvested, farmers can plant any winter grain or grass they prefer for double cropping.

Flax is grown in many countries since it does well in both warm and cool climates. It does need rainfall, and is suitable to Pennsylvania's rainfall so that irrigation is not needed. A low pasture or meadow offers better growing conditions than high fields where drain off is a problem.

Zinzendorf said that he was asked to be an advisor to Flax America because he is part of the Christiansbrunn Brotherhood, a religious cloister that currently is the largest producer of flax in the state.

But the method the Brotherhood uses to grow and harvest flax is entirely different than that promoted by Flax America. The cloister uses no electricity or motor-driven machinery where they live in the Mahantongo Valley of central Pennsylvania. As a self-sufficient community, the Brothers are expected to produce crafts for the cloister's use and to sell. The Brotherhood was founded in 1749, but disbanded before 1800. It was reorganized in 1987.

The Brotherhood demonstrates the pre-mechanized process of turning flax into linen at historic sites and events. An annual open house is held at the cloister located 1½ miles outside Pitman, two miles east of State Road 125. This year, the open house is scheduled for August 13, 1-5 p.m.

Farmers interested in raising flax are asked to write to Johannes Zinzendorf at Christiansbrunn Kloster, R.D.1, Box 149, Pitman, PA 17964.

Efficient Farms Are Productive Farms

U.S. farmers use about $2 billion worth of electricity each year for lighting, crop drying, ventilation, irrigation and countless other activities. As energy costs rise and farmers' profit margins shrink, implementing a strategy for efficient use of electricity becomes paramount.

The cost of electricity used in farm production depends on the amount used and when it is used. Farmers can cut energy costs by reduction how much electricity they use as well as by prudently scheduling when they use it.

When large motors are used only during off-peak periods, power suppliers can offer more favorable rates because generation and transmission facilities are being used more efficiently. If, however, large loads are used during peak periods, suppliers assess a special demand charge for the extra generation capacity required.

Farmers can reduce the amount of electricity they use without reducing productivity simply by following a few painless practices.

Here are some suggestions on how to increase electric efficiency on the farm:

- Set water heater thermostats as low as permissible while meeting sanitation requirements, to reduce tank and pipe heat losses.
- Turn water heaters off during long periods when hot water is not needed.
- Add insulation to water heaters and pipes that carry hot water.
- Use curtains or partitions to confine animals to small areas during periods of high heat requirements, such as brooding.
- Establish routines for switching off all lights when they are not needed.
- Light only work areas rather than entire rooms.
- When replacing incandescent lamps, use more efficient, lont-life fluorescent units.
- Locate motors in the coolest, cleanest, driest environment possible.
- Maintain proper belt tension and pulley alignment on motor-driven equipment.
- Add rodent guards to open motors and keep equipment clean.

Many more suggestions are available in publications produced by the National Food and Energy Council Low Cost/No Cost Energy Management Practices on Farms is a pamphlet offering energy-saving tips that cost little or nothing to implement. The Farm Energy Analysis is a collection of more than 300 pages of energy-management techniques and evaluation procedures.

To obtain copies, contact the NFEC at 314 875 7155 or write 409 Vandiver Drive, Suite 4-202, Columbia, MO 65202. The cost is $1 for the Low Cost/No Cost brochure and $27 for the Farm Energy Analysis.

Need A Standby Generator?

Even a short power outage can result in a significant loss of income for many farmers. Crop drying, milk refrigeration, water pumping, heating and ventilation are some of the operations that relay on electricity.

Even though the electric utility industry's service reliability record is more than 99 percent, power outages occur — because of wind, snow, ice, tornadosand other unavoidable events.

When a power failure occurs, a properly sized and well-maintained standby generator reduces inconveniences and maintains productions. It can pay for itself through avoided loss of production from just a few short periods of power loss.

Remember that emergency generators are not designed to power all electrical equipment at one time. However, they should be large enough to allow all life-sustaining and product-quality equipment to operate as needed.

The number and size of electric motors that must be started is important. Because a motor's starting current is three to five times greater than its running current, the generator must be sized to handle the starting current of the largest motor, plus all other electrical loads that will be operated at the same time.

For additional information, the National Food and Energy Countil offers the 24-page booklet On-Farm Standby Power for Multiple Use. To order, send $5.50 to NFEC, 409 Vandiver Drive, Suite 4-202, Columbia, MO 65202.

Christmas Tree Growers Honor Hommer Family

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Mrs. John (Jenny) Hommer, New Cumberland, was presented with a Life Membership Award by the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers at the association's recent Winter Membership Meeting here.

Hommer accepted the award on behalf of the John Hommer family, formerly of Glasgow, who for more than 40 years operated a successful lumber and Christmas tree business. Boyd E. Wolff, Pa. Secretary of Agriculture, and Joseph Ahearn, PCTGA past president, presented the award.

Life Membership awards are presented to those individuals and families who have made lasting contributions to the Christmas tree industry.

The Hommer family joined the association in 1954, as one of the first members of the then "infant" association. At the peak of their Christmas tree business, the family had 10 farms with more than one million Christmas trees planted. John Hommer (deceased) was elected to the association's board of directors in 1964 and served two three-year terms on the board.

In other business, Peter Abraczinskas, a fourth-generation Christmas tree grower from Catawissa, was elected president of the association. Other 1994 officers elected were vice president, Darryl Bowersox, Middleburg; secretary, Michael J. Weaver, Orbisonia; and treasurer, Sandy Walker, Lehighton.

The association also elected four new directors: David Laury, Walnutport; Norman McCurdy, Dillsburg; Bill Hagenbuch, Kingsley; and Craig Weidensaul, Wooster, Ohio. Re-elected to the board were Ellis Schmidt, Landenberg and Michael J. Weaver, Orbisonia.

Christmas Tree Beetle Hits North America

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An immigrant beetle with a taste for Scotch pine has taken the joy out of the holidays for many Christmas tree growers and eventually may threaten all of North America's pine forests.

Christmas tree buyers aren't expected to see higher prices or tree shortages this year, according to industry spokesmen.

But the U.S. Agriculture Department estimates that the pine shoot beetle will cost American businesses and taxpayers nearly $900 million over the next 30 years in damage to tree crops, landscape trees and standing timber.

"No question, it will do very, very well in North America," said Robert Haack, an entomologist with the U.S. Forest Service. "We could build up some large numbers quite rapidly. The beetle has the potential to do a lot of damage here."

The Christmas tree business could greatly speed the process. The seasonal movement of more than 35 million freshly cut trees could spread the pest all over the continent. And stumps left after the harvest provide ideal breeding spots.

That's the reasoning behind the quarantines established last year in the United States and Canada that prohibit shipment of infected trees outside the county where they were grown.

Quarantines of farms have been extended to twice as many counties as last year in the two countries, but foresters say this will only slow, not stop, the beetle's inevitable spread to natural woodlands.

Six states — New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan — and Canada's Ontario Province have quarantines this year.

Standards are strict. Agricultural inspectors in both countries check each Christmas tree grove in November, just before harvest. Every tree is inspected for any sign of the beetle. All trees from an infected grove are restricted.

"One beetle can literally shut you down," said Gary Reissen, owner of a 1,700-acre Christmas tree farm in Greenville, Mich.

The shiny, dark, cylindrical insect, no larger than a match head, is a recent invader from Europe and Asia. It has swept through Christmas tree farms around the Great Lakes since it was discovered last year in Ohio.

Preliminary studies show that it will thrive on any of North America's 35 pine species, although it prefers the Scotch pine, the favorite Christmas tree, which is plentiful on tree farms and in forests.

Pine shoot beetles weaken trees in several ways. New shoots die shortly after a single beetle enters to feed on the soft pulp inside. Heavily infested trees lose shape and eventually become susceptible to deadlier diseases. Long-term infestations in Europe have reduced the size of pines by as much as 40 percent.

The beetle has been a problem for decades throughout European and Asian forests, where timbering is regulated to keep the pest in check.

No one knows how the insect entered North America. Some scientists believe it came in on lumber used to brace cargo shipped to Great Lakes ports.

Hasty research, begun last year by the Forest Service after the beetle was discovered, suggests that the insect eventually will have a heyday in North America.

Nobody can predict how fast it will spread. Scientists are studying possible ways to control it and hope to make recommendations next year.

Meanwhile, the beetle will find plenty to eat almost anywhere on the continent. The insect has no natural enemies in this part of the world. Entomologists predict and fear that it will spread as far north as Alaska and as far south as Mexico.

It is likely to benefit from the North American practice of harvesting timber year-round.

In natural conditions, pine shoot beetle infestations spread slowly, allowing biological controls — mainly small wasps — to develop. The beetle travels only short distances and breeds just once a year. New colonies start only in freshly opened wood, such as storm-damaged branches, lightning-fractured trunks — and chain-sawed stumps.

Gary Reissen is one of the Christmas tree growers who considers himself lucky this year. He carefully pruned each tree throughout the growing season, eliminating any shoot that showed the tiniest sign of a beetle among his 170,000 harvest-ready trees.

"It was a lot of work," he says, "but consider the alternative. It's not just a one-year type of thing. If all of a sudden you can't fill an order, do you think they'll order from you again next year? I don't think so."

As it turned out, only 1 percent of Reissen's stock, in one field, was infested. Some of his friends in the business didn't fare so well.

Reissen and other growers worry more about the quarantines than about the pine shoot beetle itself. Most Christmas trees are cut before beetles can damage them aesthetically. Quarantines cost growers money in trees they're forbidden to sell.

The growers support quarantines as a courtesy to their sister industries, whose trees are older and therefore more subject to deformity or death.

"This little beetle is a much bigger threat to the timber and nursery industries," said Joan Geiger, executive director of the Milwaukee-based National Christmas Tree Association. "We're just trying to help control it."

The biggest fear among Christmas tree growers is losing customers, who mistakenly may assume that the beetle is a threat to themselves or their homes — and switch to an artificial tree. Already, artificial trees are almost as popular as natural ones.

"You're not going to get sick. It can't eat your house," Geiger said. "We just hope it doesn't destroy the industry."

No one knows what becomes of dormant beetles in Christmas trees. "We don't know whether they die from the heat, drown in the stand or survive to infest other trees," says Robert Haack.

To find out, he and a team of Michigan technicians are to monitor 12 infested Christmas trees during the coming holidays.

Northeastern Farm Credit Names Board Officers

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — During the first meeting of the new board of directors of Northeastern Farm Credit recently, Robert H. Whipple of Towanda was elected as the new board chairman.

The new vice chairman will be Donald G. Cotner, Jr. of Danville. The other board members include Dennis Spangler, New Berlin; Dale R. Hoffman, Shinglehouse; Thomas M. McCarty, Sugar Run; Lee A. Shaffer, Selinsgrove; Richard B. Crawford, Port Royal; Carroll E. Doan, Knoxville; Harold A. Holt, Middleburg; Richard Kriebel, Benton; Douglas W. Lawton, Wellsboro; Alfred B. Munro, Jersey Shore; and Robert G. Naylor, Factoryville.

The board consists of 12 directors elected by the membership and one "outside" director elected by the board for a total of 13 board members. The membership is defined as the customers of Farm Credit — eligible, voting stockholders who use the credit services of the Farm Credit cooperative. The board of directors is made up of the farmers who are active members of the cooperative. The 13th board member is called an "outside" director because by law this person cannot be a borrower with the cooperative.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster County Farm Women Society #18 held the February meeting at "The Gathering Place" in Mount Joy for a noon meal. Thirty-four were in attendance. Husbands were guests not only to enjoy the food and fellowship, but also to learn about the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture's program in the competitive area of Foreign Trade.

Speaker Peter Witmer, Chief of Domestic International Trade Agency of the Dept. of Agriculture, reported that booths are rented at 30 world wide trade events for Pa. companies to share their products to foreign buyers.

The Food Trade Show is the world's largest of its kind.

Members were amazed to learn of the diversity of these Pennsylvania companies.

The society had a positive reaction to the aggressive program of the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture and pride in the report of 6.1 billion in exports of Pa. companies.

Berks Society 6

Six members and one guest attended the February luncheon meeting of the Berks County Society of Farm Women Group #6. Roll call question: Did you give or receive a valentine?

Members were reminded to bring items for the Greater Berks Food Bank to the next meeting. Members were asked to bake goods and help to make noodles for a community pot pie dinner on Sunday, March 20 from 12:00 to 4:00 at the Oley Valley Elementary School.

HAPPENINGS

National FFA Week
Connie Nolt
Reporter
Cloister FFA

National FFA Week was observed February 21-25 to better inform the public about FFA.

FFA encourages members to develop their leadership skills and to strive for excellence.

There are many contests available to participate in, such as public speaking, parliamentary procedure, animal judging, milk judging, land judging, and many more.

FFA students are to have their own projects. The project can be anything related to agriculture, raising strawberries, bees, hogs, lambs, rabbits, and many more.

Members can also work at an agriculture-related bsuiness, such as working at a hardware store or, of course, working on a farm.

A detailed record book must be kept for every project a student has. A student can have many projects.

I think FFA is a very worthwhile organization to get involved with. It gives you many challenges and opportunities. You meet many new friends at contests too.

As a freshman, I am very excited about FFA and I hope you become interested, too.

NDB Helps Develop New Products Market

ARLINGTON, Va. — After beginning work with branded products almost a year ago to help market a dairy-juice beverage, the National Dairy Board is broadening its branded activity by working with other companies who have entered this new category in recent months.

Late last year, the 36 dairy farmers serving on the National Dairy Board approved a policy for helping develop new product categories to open markets for dairy. The policy was initiated in November 1992 when the Board approved funds to help market "Kemps Yo-J," a yogurt-juice beverage competing with juices.

"Market studies show that dairy-juice blends are holding more than a 5 percent share of the juice market in Minneapolis/St. Paul, the original launch market for such beverages," said David Haley, senior brand manger with Marigold Foods, Inc., makers of Yo-J.

"Those numbers excite us and are good news for dairy farmers too, since Yo-J alone found a new market for 500,000 pounds of milk during a one-year period ending August 15," Haley said.

"Minneapolis/St. Paul represents 2 percent of U.S. population, and we're looking forward to similar results throughout more of the country."

Since last winter, at least four other similar dairy-based beverages have entered the market, so the National Dairy Board discontinued funding of Yo-J marketing exclusively.

With unused funds from the original agreement with Yo-J, the Board looked at marketing plans of other new dairy-based beverage products.

From those marketing plans, the National Dairy Board decided to help expand market penetration of three products in the category by funding in-store sampling demonstrations across more of the U.S., including a look at the Northwest, Southwest and more Midwest markets. In-store sampling will occur through March 1994.

The National Dairy Board will fund in-store sampling promotions of TCBY's "Blenders," a joint venture between TCBY and Mid-America Dairymen; Land O'Lakes' "Breakaway" and Marigold's "Yo-J."

In line with the original branded marketing policy approved by the dairy farmer-Board, all companies must spend significant funds of their own to more than match National Dairy Board spending.

National Dairy Board criteria for funding branded product marketing requires:

- The new product be unique and different adding to total dairy sales, not just taking sales from another dairy category;
- National Dairy Board spending for such activities to not exceed 2 percent of total program spending each year;
- Partner company spending to be at least three times Dairy Board funding.

"This program encourages companies to invest in new products and build new dairy categories to sell more milk," said Bill Underwood, New York dairyman and chair of the National Dairy Board's advertising and sales promotion committee.

Energy Options For Irrigators

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Many electric utilities offer load-management options to irrigators as a means of lowering electrical peak demands on utility generating systems. These options typically come with a reduced rate of the irrigators.

Load management refers to the brief interruption of electrical service during peak usage times, or the scheduling of irrigation loads so all farmers' pumps are not on at one time.

Utilities have developed numerous control options that benefit irrigators. Irrigators should select an option based on their crop needs, irrigation system flexibility, management abilities and projected cost savings.

Many irrigators find that electric load control also produces more efficient water use because of timely yet adequate water application for crops.

The greatest potential for irrigation load management comes when irrigation systems have adequate water supplies, soils have water holding capabilities of 1.5 inches or more of available water per foot of soil depth and irrigation systems are automated controlled.

When considering a load management option, your utility can help you choose one that will fit your crop and system requirements. Hours of control per season for each option must be projected to help you decide among the programs offered. Ignoring participation in an available irrigation control program usually will result in rate penalties.

For more information on irrigation load management strategies, contact your electric utility or send $5.50 to the National Food and Energy Council, 409 Vandiver Drive, Suite 4-2-2, Columbia, MO, 65202. Request Irrigation Load Management: Options & Opportunities, a 32-page report that discusses the major type of irrigation systems, the rationale behind managing loads and variables that affect peak electric use in irrigation.

Students Make Difference In Corps

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A student in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences is participating in a Pennsylvania program designed to be a model for President Clinton's National Service Program.

Howard Pope, a junior from Philadelphia majoring in agricultural and biological engineering, is a participant in the inaugural year of the Pennsylvania Service Corps, one of eight pilot programs across the country.

"The Pennsylvania Service Corps works like a domestic version of the Peace Corps," Pope said. "In return for a year of service, participants receive a living wage and, at the end of the year, $5,000 to apply to educational expenses. At the same time, worthy organizations receive professional assistance they otherwise might not be able to afford."

Under the auspices of the corps, Pope works full time for Volunteer programs and Services, part of Penn State's Office of Student Activities. He began his assignment on July 17, after a week-long Corps training session at Susquehanna University.

His year with Volunteer Programs and Services will be busy. His projects include working with agencies to ease student volunteers' transportation problems and compiling a directory of student volunteer opportunities at both the University Park and Commonwealth campuses.

He will also help develop workshops for agencies that make use of student volunteers. To top it off, he will help plan and stage a statewide conference on student service leadership in February.

Pope first became interested in community service two years ago, when he served as philanthropy chairman for his fraternity, Pi Kappa Phi. The national fraternity sent him information about "Into the Streets," a national volunteer awareness program developed by the Campus Outreach Opportunity League and sponsored at Penn State by the Office of Student Activities.

"The program introduces community service to college students with no prior volunteering experience," said Pope. As codirector of "Into the Streets" for two years, Pope coordinated volunteer activities such as cleaning Shaver's Creek, painting the Women's Resource Center, visiting nursing homes and youth centers, and helping with the Pitt/Penn State Blood Drive.

These experiences were so positive that he was eager to put more effort into community service. He has postponed his graduation date in order to put most of his time into the corps.

"I'm very passionate about community service," he said. "The Pennsylvania Service Corps gave me the opportunity to put all my efforts into doing things that will make some difference in peoples' lives. Nothing grand or dramatic, just a small difference."

Students and others interested in volunteering can contact Volunteer Programs and Services at (814) 863-4624.

Pesticide Containers Can Be Recycled

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As more landfills close and stricter regulations make opening new ones more difficult, other ways to handle chemically contaminated wastes are being explored.

Farmers, for instance, are recycling plastic pesticide containers, said a waste management expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"With agriculture generating approximately 60 million pounds of plastic containers each year, recycling helps to manage this large amount of waste while supplying raw material for new products," said James Garthe, instructor in agricultural engineering.

All remaining pesticide residue must be removed before these containers can be recycled. Required by state and federal law, rinsing removes more than 99 percent of all remaining pesticides.

"The container must be properly cleaned immediately after the contents are used, either by pressure rinsing with a special nozzle or by triple rinsing," Garthe said.

"Unless a container is properly rinsed, it is classified by the state as a hazardous waste, which makes disposal difficult and time-consuming. A properly rinsed container is classified as municipal solid waste and usually will be accepted for recycling."

After the container has been rinsed, the cap is discarded. Caps usually are made of unrecyclable material and contain caked-on pesticide residue.

Containers waiting to be recycled should be kept in a dry area out of the rain. "Protecting the container from rain reduces the chance for the recycling inspector to mistake rainwater for pesticide residue," Garthe said.

The containers should be stored until a large quantity is available. Then they can be transported to a site that accepts them for recycling. Personnel from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture or the Department of Environmental Resources will inspect the containers, rejecting any with obvious pesticide residue.

Accepted containers are turned into chips, collected in sacks and taken to a recycler. "Eventually the chips are melted to form pellets, making raw material for products such as new pesticide containers, fence posts, sign posts and even roofing tiles," Garthe said. "When pelletizing is not practical, the granulated chips can be used as high-energy fuel."

At least 25 states have pesticide container recycling programs, and that number is expected to grow. "In 1993, 1.2 million pounds of containers were collected from approved sites in several states," Garthe said. "In Pennsylvania, Adams, Franklin and Lancaster counties are in the initial stages of developing pilot programs for 1994."

To promote state efforts to recycle used pesticide containers, members of the agricultural chemical industry have organized the Agricultural Container Research Council. The organization distributes educational materials, helps establish programs and provides names of contractors for granulating and transporting containers to recyclers.

For more information about recycling, contact your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Assistance Sought For Semen Export Promotion

COLUMBIA, Mo. — As a member of the recently formed U.S. Livestock Genetic Export Inc., (USLGE), The National Association of Animal Breeders (NAAB) has applied for funds to be allocated to qualified private firms for promotion of USA-origin bovine semen in international markets.

The funds are made possible under the auspices of the Market Promotion Program (MPP), administered by the USDA Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS).

The final funding level for the USLGE/NAAB Branded Program is to be determined by FAS.

The USLGE/NAAB Branded Program supports the efforts of USA firms to promote private labels of frozen bovine semen throughout the world. The ultimate objective is to increase the total market for bovine semen from all USA exporters.

Allocation of available funds are to be made to qualified USA firms on an equitable and uniform basis within the guidelines of USDA-FAS and consistent with the objectives of the MPP program.

Under the program, participants will be reimbursed up to 50 percent of eligible promotion expenses, up to the amount of their respective allocations authorized by NAAB.

The 1994 program year is to run from May 1, 1994 thru April 30, 1995. All program expenses must be incurred before the end of the program April 30, 1995.

USA companies desiring to take advantage of this program must submit an application to NAAB using the form prescribed by NAAB. The absolute deadline for receipt of applications by NAAB is noon, Friday, March 11, 1994.

In determining the qualifications of each applicant and fund allocations, consideration is to be given to previous experience with exporting of bovine semen from the USA, and the applicant's ability to provide staff support to supervise and carry out the proposed promotional activities.

Willingness and ability to provide adequate supplies of USA origin bovine semen of the quality desired by foreign buyers in response to the demand generated by the promotional activities must be demonstrated.

The promotional activities proposed be each applicant will be individually evaluated and approved by NAAB and the USDA-FAS. Therefore, a detailed description of the promotional activities proposed to be funded under the MPP program, including a budget of the funds to be expended by country, is required.

The method by which the applicant proposes to evaluate the success of the proposed promotional activities must be included.

The applicant must own the bull whose semen is promoted and own the label or brand name under which the semen is to be promoted, or by written agreement with the proprietor, be assigned exclusive rights of representation for the semen and brand to be promoted. All semen and brands to be promoted must be USA origin.

Each participating company will be required to enter into a contract with NAAB and will pay a fee to NAAB for administrative services in accordance with the amount of program funds allocated.

Additional information about the program and applications are available upon request from NAAB by contacting Dr. Gordon A. Doak, P.O. Box 1033, Columbia, Missouri 65205; Telephone 314/445-4406; Facsimile 314/446-2279; or Telex 258099 NAAB UR.

New Pesticides May Be A Question Of Taste

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences hope to develop safer pest controls by altering the way plants taste to insects.

"The chemical senses, taste and smell, often are the key to insects' survival," said Dr. James Frazier, professor and head of the department of entomology. "They have a remarkable ability to detect and respond to the natural chemical constituents in a crop. We're studying how insects choose to feed on different plants, because bugs won't harm what they refuse to eat."

Frazier and research associate Sylwester Chyb work with the corn rootworm, a pest whose voracious larvae cause $40 million worth of damage in Pennsylvania crops each year. "If we can find chemicals that impair the larvae's sense of taste, perhaps we can shut down their ability to recognize crops they feed on," he said.

Insects taste through hairs located on the mouthparts or on the feet. "These hairs have a hollow tip with taste sensory cells inside," Frazier said. "The cells connect directly to the brain, giving insects a sharper sense of taste than our own.

"For example, because insects' taste receptors are more specific than ours, some synthetic sweeteners developed for humans don't appeal to them," Frazier said. "The shape of the synthetic molecule doesn't match the insect's sugar taste receptor."

To find out what tastes entice or repulse the corn rootworm, Frazier and Chyb immobilize a rootworm and place a glass capillary tube over one taste hair at a time. "The tube contains one or more chemicals that might stimulate the taste cells," Frazier said. "Computers measure and record the nerve impulses each cell emits per second, giving us quantitative data about how it responds to each chemical."

The difficult part is interpreting the data. "Are these cells communicating pleasure or disgust to the insect's brain?" Frazier asked, "To find out, we give the same compounds to insects to feed on, let them choose between two mixtures or two plants, and observe their responses."

Frazier and colleagues have found a number of naturally occurring compounds that make plants taste terrible to pests. Now they are studying how the compounds might be used in pest control.

"These chemicals could be sprayed on plants as today's pesticides are, but they would protect the crop simply by making it taste bad to the larvae," Frazier said. "Because we probably can use nontoxic compounds that allow beneficial insect predators to provide additional control, this approach fits well with other pest-management strategies."

Another option is to use something pests find delicious as bait. "Every fourth row of a crop could be treated with bait to draw the insects, then just those rows could be sprayed with insecticide, reducing the amount needed for adequate control."

But it is unlikely that any control will give growers a final victory in the battle against crop pests. "After thousands of years, we have yet to eradicate a single insect pest," Frazier said. "Insects eventually overcome everything science has thrown at them."

Students View Sausage Making

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)— Edward Mills demonstrates sausage making at the Penn State Meats Laboratory for juniors from Philadelphia's Walter Biddle Saul High School of Agricultural Sciences.

The College of Agricultural Sciences officially adopted Saul as part of the Adopt-a-School program sponsored by the School District of Philadelphia. The students also enjoyed a walking tour of the University Park Campus, a visit to the Department of Dairy and Animal Science Deer Research Center, a trip to the Penn State's University Creamery, and educational activities sponsored by various departments.

Walker Applauds Call For Ethanol Use

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker applauded the decision of the Clinton administration to increase the use of corn-derived ethanol in motor fuel to control smog in urban areas.

"This decision is a victory for the farmer and a victory for the environment. Everyone is a winner. The long-range result will benefit our entire society," Walker said.

The Clean Air Act of 1990 mandated the use of reformulated gasolines in the nation's nine smoggiest cities to reduce the use of harmful toxics into the atmosphere. Under the plan set by the Environmental Protection Agency, 10 percent of all gasoline sold in the U.S. will contain ethanol.

"We have an important corn crop for the grain business in Maryland. While we are not as big as some states, the increased use of ethanol from corn will give out U.S. farmers another outlet for their production. The increased demand should result in stronger prices for corn. In short, the use of ethanol will be good for Maryland corn farmers and our state's urban areas," said Walker.

In 1992, the corn for grain business in Maryland resulted in cash receipts of more than $94 million.

MMI Sets Goals For New Year

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Securing a more equitable price for members, strengthening the cooperative's customer relationships and advancing MMI's value-added position in the marketplace are the primary challenges facing Milk Marketing Inc., CEO Don Schriver told delegates at their recently held annual meeting.

"Positive things are happening," Schriver said.

He said progress is being made to resolve some of MMI's key market challenges in Federal Orders 33 (the Ohio Valley area) and 36 (eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania). Processor and producer groups, and the Ohio Department of Agriculture are sitting down together to recommend a structure that would bring more equity and stability to that region.

"We're optimistic," said Schriver, who remarked that MMI's Class I sales in F.O.s 33 and 46 (Kentucky and southern Indiana) are up 22 million pounds per month over year ago levels.

"MMI is still the dominant seller of fluid milk within its eight-state region, but we can't lose site of the fact that Class I — the traditional source for securing the highest over-order premiums and highest value for milk — is undergoing a dramatic change," he said.

Since this past August, MMI's Class I sales in F.O. 36 have increased 4.8 million pounds per month. Annually, MMI markets and processes 4.5 billion pounds of milk, 2.4 billion of that is in Class I sales.

With changing markets nationwide, MMI's growing relationship with DMV continues to be important. "We must find different value-added uses and markets for our milk and milk components — uses that can compete with those West Coast products," said Schriver.

One year ago, at the 1992 annual meeting, MMI announced the beginnings of an international strategic alliance with the Dutch cooperative, Campina Melkunie's American division, DMV USA. The two cooperatives have agreed to exchange and mix successful marketing components — for example, MMI's milk supply location with DMV's research and marketing capabilities — to benefit both organizations.

To date in 1993, DMV has marketed 36 million pounds of manufactured product for MMI. That is equal to nearly one million pounds per day of raw milk.

"How long will this last?" asked Rod Carlson referring to the question on the minds of many delegates effected by the reduction of premiums, last August, in F.O.s 33 and 36.

"We are encouraged that processors in Ohio have shown enough concern over the situation to sit down at the bargaining table under the auspices of the state director of agriculture," he said. "We're making progress toward establishing a balancing pool."

And once established, the next step would be to re-establish quality premiums, Carlson said.

Changing markets, membership, government support, and customers are now the norm, reported MMI chairman of the board Herman Brubaker, and he said that new norm will have a tremendous effect on MMI's markets.

California is now the largest dairy producing state, replacing the near century-long leader Wisconsin. "Suddenly we are not selling milk and dairy products to those markets. They are selling to ours," said Brubaker. "We deal weekly with milk coming in from those areas that compete for sales that we, as a regional milk supplier, have had for years."

And the only way to deal with this changing environment is to work together — "two heads are better than one" — to promote a self-help approach to industry problems.

"Self-help is our best chance to take control of our own future as dairy farmers. This program, now before the House and Senate Agriculture committees, is not only the best shot — it's our only shot," said MMI's chairman.

Cost efficiency and positioning continue to be the focus of MMI's financial goals, reported Merle Koppenhafer, MMI's chief financial officer.

With MMI's 90- to 10-percent equity to debt ratio, MMI has excellent borrowing power, he said.

In fiscal 1993, MMI reduced long-term debt $2.55 million and decreased operating expenses $1.4 million. Equity redemption checks totaling $4.2 million were mailed to members on Dec. 10.

The 1993 Communication Fair offered information centers about the operations of MMI: field service, operations, communications, and the MMI Producer Payroll department.

Since communicating was the theme, delegates had the chance to be the first to try out MMI's new telecommunication system that — as of Jan. 3 — will offer a 24-hour a day lab report service.

Since hands-on displays were the biggest hits, producers lined up to see demonstrations about the new antibiotic on-farm testing equipment now offered through the MMI Farm Supply Department. About 50 producers brought samples in to be tested.

MMI is a 5,500 member dairy farmer owned cooperative encompassing an eight state Midwestern area including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia. Last year MMI marketed and processed more than 3.8 billion pounds or 442 million gallons of member milk.

CIBA Announces Intention To Sell Unit

MISSISSAUGA, Ontario — The Plant Protection Division of Ciba Canada announced its intention to seek a buyer for its five-year-old Trichogramma biological control business unit, including a pilot-production facility in Guelph, Ontario.

The Trichogramma Research and Development Project was established by Ciba in 1989, in partnership with the Ontario Technology Fund, the Ontario Ministry of the Natural Resources and the universities of Guelph and Toronto, to develop an effective, natural control for spruce budworm infestation in Canadian forests and insect pests in agricultural crops.

Ciba opened the Guelph-based pilot plant in September of 1992 to massproduce Trichogramma minutum and brassicae and currently employs five technicians and five scientists. The fully equipped and functioning Guelph plant has a replacement value of more than $1 million and total investment in the project, by Ciba and its partners, exceeds $6 million.

"The decision to sell our interest in the Trichogramma project follows a review of global research and development priorities by our insect control business unit in Basle, Switzerland," said Bill Harris, president of Ciba Plant Protection. "The review recognized that the Canadian forestry market for Trichogramma may not provide the needed return on our investment to justify further funding requirements."

Trichogramma is the name for a group of tiny parasitic wasps that destroy the eggs of budworm and other insects which threaten certain crops and trees.

Alfalfa Question:
Do you have to sacrifice yield and quality to get winterhardiness?

The Answer:
No.

CimarronVR and Belmont varieties stand-up to cold weather and harsh winter conditions — without sacrificing yield or quality!

These varieties can be harvested earlier in the spring and later in the fall to give higher yields, and a more even distribution of yield over the season. And because they are vigorous, they can be cut more frequently to give softer, leafier hay.

Why settle for late-starting, slow-growing, short-season alfalfa. Choose CimarronVR or Belmont – premium alfalfa varieties that not only provide excellent winterhardiness, yield and quality – but also combined resistance to all the major diseases, insects, and nematodes that attack alfalfa. Proven performance.

High Potassium Boosts Alfalfa Profits

NORCROSS, Ga. — Quality forage is critical to success of the dairy enterprise and a quality forage program starts with variety selection and crop establishment, and ends with an intensive and timely cutting schedule.

But what makes it work and keeps it going are the soil fertility and pest management programs.

What makes the yield difference? Research in Ontario showed that intensively managed alfalfa produced 86 percent more yield (17.4 tons per acre) during a three-year period than the average production system (9.4 tons per acre). The intensive management system compared to the average system started with high soil potassium levels compared to low levels, and harvested five cuts compared to three cuts per year.

High soil potassium levels are the key to a high yield/high quality forage program. To produce best yields, both production systems required the same amount of potash — about 325 pounds K_2O per acre in each of the three years. But, for the average system, starting the alfalfa on a low soil test jeopardized yield opportunity in each of the three production years even though potash was supplied in excess of what the crop removed. In terms of production potential, annual fertilizer applications to low fertility soils are not as effective as those applied in high fertility soils.

For the intensive management system, very high soil potassium levels provided the basis for high yields. During the major production year, more than 600 pounds of potash was removed by a yield of more than 8 tons per acre. As a result of the high production demand, there was a significant draw down — or mining — of soil potassium.

Interestingly, when both production systems received annual potash applications of 325 of K_2O per acre, the final soil potassium levels were similar. So what made the difference? Nutrient management systems made the difference — a big 86 percent more alfalfa difference.

Effective and efficient nutrient management does not simply consider the field, crop by crop. Rather, as one crop is being grown, it's done with the next crop in mind. Alfalfa can make big yields because its taproot aggressively explores subsoils to utilize stored moisture and nutrients. Research in Missouri documented this effect. Since alfalfa can deplete subsoil potash levels, it's doubly important to start with good fertility and maintain it for the next crop. In every sense of the word, maintaining high soil fertility levels is a sustainable farming practice.

The potash/harvesting/variety management combination results in top yields, quality, and profits. A five-year research study in Michigan indicates that alfalfa producers have some discretion in making the "quality vs. yield" decision. Certain varieties produced more protein per acre while others provide higher dry matter yields. Select the variety to produce what you need. The key to growing either type of variety, according to this research, is high potash fertility and frequent harvesting.

Pa. Farmer Wins State NCGA Contest

DEKALB, Ill. — Matthew Maximuck, Doylestown, Pa., won a state first-place award in the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) yield contest, no-till non-irrigated division. Winners are selected from the highest yield entered in each category.

Maximuck won with Dekalb DK623 seed, which produced 203.92 bushels per acre. The crop was planted on May 11, 1993 in 30-inch rows at a population of 25,300 and harvested on Nov. 8.

He will be honored by Dekalb Plant Genetics at a reception during the NCGA Corn Classic in Denver, Colo. He also will receive special recognition from the NCGA.

Maximuck, who has been farming 20 years, grows 675 acres of corn, soybeans, and wheat.

Farm Show Potato Judges Garner Blue

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — Northampton County Potato judging teams did exceptionally well at the 1994 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The A team consisting of Jamie Hower of Bethlehem, Heather Ford of Northampton, and Kevin Martin and Sarah Geiger both of Danielsville placed first in the state. The B-1 team consisting of Jennifer Hower of Bethlehem, William Ford and Michael Ford of Northampton, and Nathaniel Martin of Danielsville won first in the state also.

The B-2 team consisting of Joel Geiger of Danielsville, Nicole Kondziela of Bath, and James Ford of Northampton won sixth in the state. Of the top ten judgers in the state, six were from Northampton County. Those placing in the top ten were William Ford, Jamie Hower, Heather Ford, Jennifer Hower, Joel Geiger, and Sarah Geiger. Thirteen teams competed from various counties.

With a great team effort, Northampton County placed first in the state for the first time in 1994. Much of this success is due to two very dedicated volunteers, Paul and Rachel Hower of Northampton. The Howers have been coaching Northampton County's potato judging teams for more than 20 years.

FORCE CONTROLS. In Developing FORCE soil insecticide, Zeneca Ag Products simulated and improved on the powerful chemistry found in chrysanthemum flowers. The result is the first pyrethroid insecticide designed for soil application.

Because of this unique chemistry, FORCE ranks low in mammalian toxicity, which means very low hazard to humans. In addition, the low water solubility and soil mobility of FORCE greatly reduces any risk of leaching or groundwater contamination.

CUTWORM APPLICATION RATES. Apply FORCE at 8 to 10 oz. per 1,000 linear row feet. The lbs./acre equivalent rates are:

6.5 lbs. per acre on 40" rows	7.7 lbs. per acre on 34" rows
6.9 lbs. per acre on 38" rows	8.2 lbs. per acre on 32" rows
7.3 lbs. per acre on 36" rows	8.7 lbs. per acre on 30" rows

FORCE may be applied in a T-band in front of the press wheels, in a band behind the press wheels, or in-furrow.

No other soil insecticide controls as much as FORCE® when it comes to performance against a wide variety of pests. Not only does FORCE control rootworms, it outperforms Lorsban 85% to 76% on cutworms according to 1992 field trials. Counter can't even touch cutworms. FORCE also works significantly better than Counter or Lorsban against wireworms and white grubs.

FORCE works in all weather conditions and won't interact with the rescue herbicides Accent and Beacon. It's easy to see why FORCE is a generation ahead—for the generations ahead.

Student Explores Market Opportunities

NEWARK, Del. — Derrick Bender wants to become a commodities trader on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Reaching that goal won't be easy. To groom himself for this career, Bender, a University of Delaware senior majoring in agricultural business management, is doing research for an undergraduate degree-with-distinction.

His thesis is on the feasibility of Delaware corn and soybean producers forward-selling some of their grain on the Chicago futures market.

"This is a good way to learn about how farmers use hedging and other market tools," he said. "Also, I like studying localized agriculture and its different marketing strategies. I want to determine what's the best time of year, historically, to make forward price decisions."

Bender said a futures course and other ag business courses he's taken prepared him well for this research. And the subject fascinates him. Every day during his lunch hour last summer, he followed satellite data coming in from the Chicago Board of Trade on a computer in the office of cooperative extension marketing specialist Carl German. With the Midwest floods and East Coast drought, there were lots of pricing uncertainty, making this an exciting grain marketing season to monitor.

Bender spent the summer loading 20 years' worth of grain futures and cash crop prices onto the computer. Now he's analyzing the data using regression analysis to develop a forecasting model for prices. New terminals in the college's computer laboratory give him access to the university mainframe computer for this task. He plans to complete his calculations this fall and write his thesis during winter session.

Earning a degree with distinction isn't easy, said Dr. Carl Toensmeyer, professor of agricultural marketing and Bender's advisor. "You have to give up something to do this. This is a fairly rigorous project for a senior thesis."

Eventually the manuscript will be revised and published as an Agricultural Experiment Station bulletin so that the information is available to other researchers and the public.

The data Bender loaded onto the computer last summer also is being used by Toensmeyer and German to chart corn, soybean, and wheat futures prices during the same period for a study funded by the Delaware Soybean Board. Their findings and Bender's will be used to improve marketing opportunities for Delaware grain farmers.

Tips For Kid's Healthful Eating

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — How much do school age children really know about healthful eating? According to a survey of fourth through eighth graders conducted by the International Food Information Council and the American Dietetic Association's National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics, they know a lot more than you'd think, perhaps more than many adults. The survey showed that 94 percent of children surveyed agreed that the food they eat can affect their future health, and 99 percent understood the importance of exercise in maintaining good health. Ninety-eight percent recognized the importance of eating plenty of fruits, vegetables, and whole-grain breads and cereals. Ninety-five percent were familiar with the idea of basic food groups, and 80 percent could identify at least three of them.

But according to Annette Goodling, Penn State Cooperative Extension, "the survey showed a downside to the way children think about food. A disturbing number report they're anxious about what they eat and almost three quarters of the children report worrying about fat and cholesterol."

Some children took the extremist approach to individual food choices, rather than recognizing that a sound diet should be based on a combination of foods eaten over time. For example, 85 percent said "to eat healthfully you should avoid all high-fat foods," and 77 percent agreed that "you should never eat foods with large amounts of sugar." To counteract these hard-line ideas and to encourage children to lighten up a bit, the survey's sponsoring organizations came up with 10 tips for kids for healthful eating. The 10 tips are:

- 1. Eat lots of different kinds of foods each day.
- 2. Eat more whole-grain breads and cereals, fruits, and vegetables — try to eat some at each meal.
- 3. Keep moving to stay in shape — Participate in outdoor play and sports.
- 4. Start your day with breakfast — eating breakfast can boost school performance.
- 5. Snack smart — choose snacks low in fats and sugar.
- 6. Balance your food choices so you don't eat too much of any one thing — if you eat moderate amounts of high-fat favorites at one meal, balance those with low-fat foods at others.
- 7. Be adventurous — try new foods and experiment with cooking for yourself.
- 8. Set healthy eating goals — look at the big picture and change eating habits gradually over time.
- 9. Remember, foods are not good or bad — balance and moderation are the means toward a healthful diet.
- 10. Make healthy eating fun — eat favorite foods and try new ones too.

Belt returns conditions for reduced friction.

Tools Improve Application Accuracy

The new TeeJet® Pattern Check makes it easy for applicators to see if sprayers are producing the even distribution needed for safe, effective, and cost-efficient pest control.

WHEATON Ill. — Because nozzle wear is often invisible to the naked eye, the makers of TeeJet® brand spray products introduce the TeeJet Pattern Check and Tip Tester, two easy-to-use tools to monitor spray uniformity.

The TeeJet Pattern Check helps ensure proper operation of spray equipment and a quality pattern from spray tips. By sliding the Pattern Check under a boom while spraying clean water, spray output along the boom is collected in the grooves of the portable spray table. Spray distribution is immediately apparent.

The Pattern Check makes it easy for applicators to determine if sprayers have been properly set up to produce the even distribution needed for safe, effective, and cost-efficient pest control.

Applicators can ensure that flow rates from each tip on the boom match by using the TeeJet Tip Tester, a hand-held flowmeter that helps identify worn spray tips quickly and easily. By simply placing the flowmeter cap over the nozzle, applicators can read the approximate flow rate in gallons per minute directly from a scale on the face of the Tip Tester. Each tester comes with a TeeJet nozzle cleaning brush in the built-in storage compartment.

Premeasurement Service Available

LIONVILLE (Chester Co.) — Premeasurement and other land measurement services are available from the Chester/Delaware County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) to help producers comply with acreage requirements of the 1994 farm programs.

"At the request of producers, we will measure, stake, and reference any type of acreage, or portions thereof, prior to planting," ASCS official Hollis D. Baker said. ASCS also advises producers of fields which already have an official acreage.

"Only those acres premeasured by our office will be guaranteed for the 1994 program year," she said. Premeasurement fees vary, based on the type of service rendered.

To be certain that program requirements are met, producers must plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is premeasured, and also report their crop acreage to ASCS after planting.

Hollis D. Baker said premeasurement is important in helping farmers plan the amount of land to devote to planted acreage of program crops.

Farmers interested in using premeasurement service, or in obtaining information on other producer services, should contact the local ASCS office.

White Oak Promotes Lloyd

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills, a regional supplier of livestock and poultry feeds, recently promoted Donald E. Lloyd of Newville to vice president, dairy division.

Having worked for the company for more than eight years, his new responsibilities include providing direction and technical support to the growth of the dairy sales and service department.

Lloyd began his career with White Oak Mills as a dairy specialist, gaining firsthand practical experience, and then was promoted to director of the company's dairy department.

Before joining White Oak Mills, he served as a dairy specialist at Wayne Feeds and as a livestock specialist at Master Mix.

Donald E. Lloyd

Producers Should Treat Grazing As A Crop

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy producers "should look at grazing as a crop and learn how to manage it that way," said Phil Jaquith, dairy district manager, at the Hess Mill Purina farmers dairy meeting last week.

Jaquith told the more than 140 dairy farmers and Purina Mills customers present that there are some benefits to intensive rotational grazing with dairy animals. Purina Mills is "looking for ways to save money on the farm," he said, and improve herd health.

For producers who want to examine the possiblity of using rotational grazing on their operation, the important thing is to talk to their veterinarian about it. Also, work the system in gradually to the farm — going too fast can produce problems.

Jaquith examined several "do's and don'ts" about using rotational grazing. The important thing to remember is that the cow will still require lots of hay fiber, in addition to a good deal of energy necessary for production from corn silage. In many cases, a supplement such as Purina Mills' Super Cow Milking Ration will be needed for a properly balanced nutrition.

Dairy producers can treat foot diseases in their cattle carefully by working closely with their veterinarians, according to Dr. Don Deetz, Purina Mills dairy nutritionist, at the dairy meeting.

There are many foot problems common with dairy animals, including foot rot, warts, laminitis, and others. The important thing, accoring to Deetz, is that regular hoof care is vital, including foot baths, to overall herd health.

Rick Kolb, dairy specialist, spoke about working to improve milk production by feeding top quality forages. It is important to keep the feed where the cows can get it readily. Also, Kolb said the use of the Purina Super Cow Milking Ration benefits producers by increased milk production, good milk composition, good body condition, improved feed and breeding efficiency, and more income opportunity.

The Super Cow is a high-performance, high-energy milking ration that is added to the forage.

Also, Randy Lyle, dairy nutritionist, spoke about heifer monitoring and keeping track of height, weight, breeding, and body score.

Jaquith said this year marks the 100th anniversary celebration of Purina Mills. This summer will mark the millionth ton of feed out of the Lancaster plant, with celebrations planned sometime in August or September.

Alfalfa Growers Benefit From New Technology

EAST PETERSBURG (Lancaster Co.) — To accommodate growers in their area, Chemgro needed a new dry spreader that was a bit out of the ordinary.

This is because a lot of their customers have 10-15-acre alfalfa fields needing multiple applications of seed, fertilizer, and agrichemicals and are concerned about compaction from repeated passes over their fields.

Chemgro was looking for a rig that was light and accurate and able to handle complicated mixes.

They also needed more accuracy in covering all the contour strips in the local area.

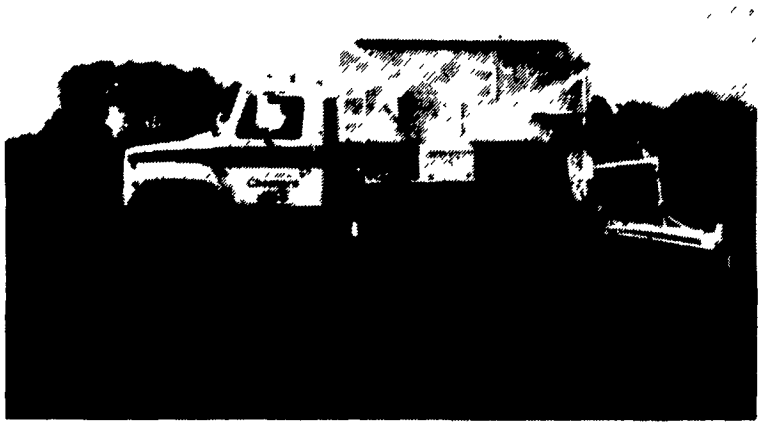
The dealership contacted Stoltzfus, a 25-year-old international farm equipment manufacturer, who custom built Chemgro a computerized spreader with a system similar to their spray trucks but designed to handle dry materials.

On a single run, the new spreader can evenly apply tiny lightweight alfalfa seed with lime, herbicide, and ammonium sulfate fertilizer, regardless of particle size.

Material is pulled from the bottom of the hopper load by a wide drag train to produce a uniform mix. It is then dropped straight down from the boom to the ground. When you drop everything vertically, it stays where you put it for extremely uniform application and minimal dust.

The unit has a 30-foot spread pattern with a sharp edge, which makes handling contour strips easier. A hydraulic slide shuts off the spreader completely when turning around, something particularly useful during seeding.

The on-board computer tracks ground speed with a radar gun and monitors rpms from the chain that pulls material out of the hopper. The operator chooses the pounds/-acre necessary and the computer adjusts by sending a signal to a hydraulic valve to speed up or slow down the release of material.



This Stoltzfus dry spreader applies alfalfa seeds and ammonium sulfate fertilizer to a Pennsylvania field.

Sensenig's Holds Meetings

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Sensenig's Feed Mill, in conjunction with Master Mix Feeds, held its annual dairy feeder meetings recently.

Total attendance for three meetings was in excess of 300 producers.

Dr. Donald Jaquette, manager, dairy market support for Premiere Agri Technologies, Decatur, Ind., was featured speaker.

Jaquette spoke on the importance of body condition in late lactation cows, ketosis, and feeding and managing for top production.

Dr. Jerry Stillabower, senior livestock veterinarian for Premiere Agri Technologies, spoke on mastitis prevention, causes, and control.

Mike Sensenig, sales manager for Sensenig's Feed Mill, presented data compiled from tests run in local herds using Master Mix's new product, Masterzyme.

Test results from more than 100 cows in six Lancaster County herds show an average improvement in milk production persistency in excess of seven pounds per cow per day. Milk butterfat and SNF were also positively affected.

Masterzyme is a blend of digestive enzymes which aid in more efficient digestion and utilization of ration nutrients.

Mike Sensenig also introduced a new 30-percent heifer concentrate for use with on-farm grains to provide an economical and effective heifer growing program.

Ag Still Md.'s Number 1 Industry

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has announced that recent reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Economic Research Service confirm the importance of agriculture to Maryland's economy.

"In our highly urbanized state, agriculture is still Maryland's number one industry. According to USDA, farm and related industries in Maryland still employ some 12.7 percent of the work force, or 336,347 jobs," Walker said.

Agriculture, along with agriculture dependent businesses, generates more than $11 billion in annual revenues. There are approximately 15,000 farms in Maryland on about 2.5 million acres. This accounts for 40 percent of the state's arable land.

"Every measure we have continues to show that a healthy agriculture is important both to state's economy and quality of life. The strength of agriculture in Maryland is a tribute to our farmers who toil daily to provide us with a bounty of unparalleled diversity and quality," said Walker.

Maryland's leading agricultural commodities in terms of cash receipts are broilers, greenhouse and nursery items, dairy products, soybeans and corn.

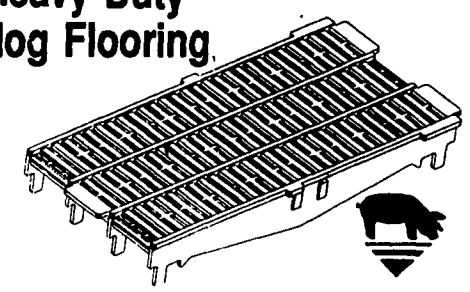
☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven

This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction

POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are bevelled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

Schaefer Barn Kooler®

The Barn Kooler® System incorporates a series of fans and controls into an integrated system that is used for both high velocity air cirulation for cooling during the Summer and gentle, draft-free air movement during the Winter months. By utilizing thermostically controlled speed modulators, the speed of the circulating air is constantly adjusted to the temperature. As the temperatures in the building rise and fall, so does the volume of air being circulated.

MG INFECTIONS

Paul H. Patterson
Assistant Professor
Dept. Of
Poultry Science

Nationally, the economic impact of Mycoplasma gallisepticum (Mg) on the table egg industry has been estimated at between $118 million and $150 million annually.

Commercial egg producers in southern California alone lost an estimated $127 million in 1984 because of Mg. Losses from this outbreak, in production and costs for Mg control programs, amounted to more than $6.5 million.

Chronic respiratory infections associated with Mg become more severe and adversely affect producer profit if the disease is complicated with E. coli, Newcastle disease, or infectious bronchitis exposure.

Infection can spread from the hen's respiratory tract to oviduct, causing reduced egg production and poor egg quality. Egg producers experience lost revenues from poor feed conversion, increased medication costs, higher air sac, and sep-tox condemnations in addition to drops in egg production and poor egg quality.

The preferred method to control Mg in poultry flocks is to maintain flocks free of infection and use good management and sanitation practices to prevent introduction from outside sources. Unfortunately, in Pennsylvania and many other states, Mg is already established on many multi-age farms, and transmission from mature hens to replacement pullets ensures its existence. In situations where eradication appears out of reach or unobtainable, controlling the production losses appears to be the only viable alternative.

There are several ways to counter the losses associated with Mg infections. One is the therapeutic and prophylactic feeding of antibiotics to reduce the clinical symptoms and stress associated with Mg. However, the costs of adding antibiotics to the feed and the increased incidence of Mg-resistant organisms has made their use less desirable.

Vaccination of the pullets before they are exposed to field strains of Mg on the laying farm holds the most promise, according to some researchers. Numerous studies have demonstrated that vaccination against Mg can cut egg production losses in half when compared to non-vaccinated birds exposed to the disease.

Killed oil emulsion Mg-bacterins, live F-strain Mg, and the new Mycovac-L from Intervet Inc. are the current vaccine alternatives. Shortcomings with the bacterins are the labor costs associated with injecting individual birds, concern for worker safety, and bird lesions from the injection.

The use of the F-strain has been denied by some state veterinarians because turkeys in close proximity are susceptible to the live F-strain Mg. Early communications from the field suggest that flocks vaccinated with Mycovac-L are performing well. Unfortunately, actual hen performance and cost analysis compared with non-vaccinated hens have never been determined under Pennsylvania's conditions.

Some suggest that comprehensive field evaluations are the best way to evaluate vaccine efficacy against drops in egg production after field exposure to Mg. With this premise, we conducted the following study to evaluate the potential of Mycovac-L for Single Comb White Leghorn hens in Pennsylvania. Our objective was to compare the flock performance records for pullets immunized with Mycovac-L with similar flocks given F-strain. Comparisons would include hen body weight, feed consumption, feed conversion, mortality, egg production, eggs per hen housed, and case weights.

To carry out this study, we first identified Mg-vaccinated flocks from the license applications at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Flock owners were contacted for confidenual use of their flock records and any comments they had regarding bird performance or egg quality. Production records from eight flocks immunized with F-strain and 14 flocks immunized with Mycovac-L were summarized. The records were pooled into 10-week periods from 20-29 weeks, 30-39 weeks, 40-49 weeks, and 50-59 weeks of production, and average values were compared statistically between the two treatments.

The results are as follows. Mortality was approximately the same between the two treatments, only in the 40-49 week period was it statistically higher for F-strain (.46 percent) vs. Mycovac-L (.13 percent) vaccinated hens. Body weight was consistently reduced by F-strain vaccination in every 10-week period comparison (averaged .16 pound lighter). No statistical difference in eggs per hen housed was detected; however, birds given the Mycovac-L averaged one more egg during the periods we considered.

Statistically higher hen day production was recorded for Mycovac-L treated birds at 30-39 weeks (89.4 vs. 88.3 percent) and at 40-49 weeks (85.1 vs. 83.7 percent) compared with F-strain. No difference was observed in feed per dozen eggs or feed consumption per 100 hens per day.

Farmland Protection Passes 50,000-Acre Mark

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's farmland protection program has reached a new milestone, preserving more than 50,000 acres of agricultural land since the program began in 1989.

At its meeting recently, the state Farmland Protection Board approved easement purchases for 44 farms in 18 counties, protecting 5,419 acres of prime farmland from development and putting the farmland protection effort over the 50,000-acre mark in approved easement purchases.

"We're delighted to have reached 50,000 acres in the farmland protection effort," said State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff, who chairs the board. "We also approved the first easement purchases for Carbon and Columbia counties, so we're seeing the program continue to expand as more counties preserve more farms."

Under the Farmland Protection Program, the state and counties purchase development rights to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land. Individual landowners apply to county Agricultural Land Preservation Boards.

If approved for possible easement purchase, the county boards may request state funding participation. Counties may participate jointly with the state in easement purchases or may purchase easements outright.

Poultry Pointers

Egg case weight was significantly greater during the 40-49 and 50-59 week periods for the hens that received Mycovac-L (48.7 vs. 48.3 pounds, and 49.8 vs. 49.6 pounds, respectively).

Consistent trends in body weight, hen day egg production, and case weight would suggest Mycovac-L is a desirable product to use in Pennsylvania for coping with Mg. Producers using Mycovac-L consistently said the shell quality was better compared to F-strain.

Wrinkled, misshapen eggs, and weak shell or soft tips were less evident with Mycovac-L vaccinated flocks. Pullet growers and egg producers also said the F-strain appeared to be harder on the pullet, so much so that she had trouble meeting target pullet weight in some instances compared with the milder Mycovac-L.

To date, we have no records on egg grade or egg losses incurred by these flocks. Further record evaluation including pullet body weights, and an economic cost/return evaluation, would greatly add to this comparison.

Penn State Garners First Placings At NESA

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Each spring, college students from Pennsylvania to Maine gather for the Northeast Student Affiliate (NESA) of the American Dairy Science Association and the American Society of Animal Science.

This year's meeting was held during the last weekend in February and hosted by Penn State's Dairy Science and Block and Bridle clubs.

Sarah Johnson and Shannon Peterman co-chaired the event, which began with registration and a social in the Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building.

Institutions represented at this year's meeting included University of Connecticut, Cornell University, University of Delaware, Delaware Valley College, University of Maine, University of Vermont, Vermont Technical College, and of course, Penn State.

Competition began on Saturday with a judging contest. Students judged a total of eight classes, including 3-year-old Holstein cows, American Quarter Horse yearlings, Dorset yearling ewes, market hogs, Simmental heifers, Leghorn laying hens, hams, and frankfurters.

Penn State students garnered the first six placings and eight of the top 10 individual placings.

Nineteen four-person teams competed in the judging contest, with Penn State taking first, second, and third. The following students made up the Penn State teams (individual placings shown in parentheses): First place A Team included John Penny (2nd), Daryl Bomgardner (10th), Brenda Mahaliak (3rd), and Cathy Pavelski (5th); second place B Team included Tom Gibney (6th), Andy McIntire, John Foster (13th), and Chad Henry (1st); third place C team included Scott Myers (4th), Bryan Dean, Jen Trout (8th), and Adam Tanis (17th).

In quiz bowl competition, the Penn State A team, made up of Henry Zerby, Andrew Morley, Thad Will, and Jason Ahola, placed first. The B team, including Jeff Hostetter, Jayne Hess, Vince Smith, and Ryan Mattocks, placed second. And the C team, with Ben McConaughey, Matt Espenshade, Brian McAllister, and Brenda Horgan, finished fourth out of 17 teams.

In the paper presentation contest, Marel Raub placed first with her topic, "The Impact of the Nutrient Management Act on Pennsylvania Dairy Farms." Michele Ruffing spoke on dispelling false propaganda being spread against the use of animal products. Her talk, "Fight Back," brought her a fourth place. Jen Furl also presented a talk, "Stray Voltage and Its Impact on Cows and Lactation."

In the final two competitions of the weekend, Penn State also emerged victorious. Henry Zerby, a dairy and animal science major with dual minors in International Agriculture and Poultry Technology and Management, was selected as the NESA outstanding senior. This is the second time in three years that a Penn State student has been recognized with this honor.

In overall outstanding team competition, Penn State placed first, second, and fourth, overall, distinguishing Penn State as the outstanding student affiliate chapter in the Northeast region.

Next year's NESA meeting will be held at Cornell University.

Md. Announces Century Farm Program

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Governor William Donald Schaefer announced the creation of a Maryland Century Farm program to recognize Maryland farms that have stayed in the same family for a century or more.

"Our century farm families need to be recognized. They represent a durability and love of the land that is the heritage of Maryland," said Governor Schaefer. "Agriculture continues as Maryland's leading industry because of the hard work, dedication and innovation of our long time farm families."

The Maryland Century Farm Program will honor families whose farms have been in the same family for more than 100 consecutive years, contain at least 10 of the original acres, and gross more than $2,500 annually from the sale of farm products.

"I urge all those who think they may qualify to fill out an application. Century families will participate in an annual awards ceremony and receive a certificate from the Department of Agriculture and recognition by the governor," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker.

Applications may be obtained from the Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, or from local cooperative extension service offices.

Now Is The Time To Have Your Farm Entered In The Dairy Of Distinction Program. Use Application Below.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is prepared to receive applications for the 1994 awards. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well received, and officers look forward to an excellent program again next year.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years, without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1994. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition, In addition your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In

New York, contact Carol Weddle, New York Holstein Assn., 957 Mitchell St., Box 190, Ithica, N.Y. 14851. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.

The North View Farm of the Calvin and Mary Will family in Somerset County is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to use the application to have your farm named in 1994.

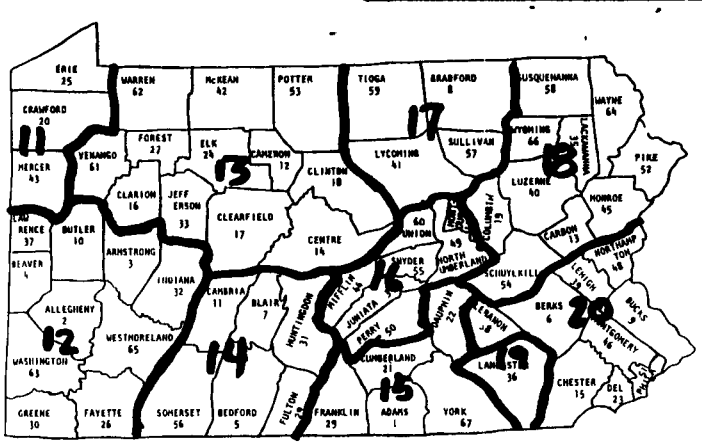
Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, Leslie Firth; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Janet and David Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert and Bernice Gable; District 17, Larue Thomas; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, Lisa Risser; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Shorthorn Auxiliary Announces Leadership Team

OMAHA, Neb. — The National Shorthorn Lassies, auxiliary of the American Shorthorn Association, conducted their annual meeting during the Southwestern Exposition and Stock Show in Fort Worth, Texas.

Following the board of directors elections during the group's business session, Wilma Richardson, Marlow, Okla., was elected national president of the organization. The new president has been involved with Shorthorns since her marriage to Sam Richardson nearly 40 years ago.

She served 18 years as the Oklahoma state secretary for 18 years, state vice president, queen chairperson, and is serving as president of that group. On the national level, she has been membership chairperson and national queen chairperson.

In addition to Shorthorn and community activities, she also works as a rural mail carrier. She and her husband have four children, Samuel Ray, Sherrie Smith, Sarah, and Shelly. In Lassie award presentations at Forth Worth, Richardson was named one of the national Lassie of the Year recipients.

Richardson succeeds Colleen Cline, Rushville, Ill., who had served on the national board since 1990 in the positions of publicity, membership, and as national president.

Elected as national vice president was Kay Good of Good Family Shorthorns, Barnard, Kan. Long active in local, state, and national Shorthorn positions, she is an instrumental part of the family operated purebred operation that was successful in exhibiting three divisional champions, including the grand champion female at the National Shorthorn Show held in Fort Worth.

Elected to other leadership positions were Kathleen Kosman, Vichwood, Ohio, as secretary; Norma Bolton, Oakland, Iowa, as treasurer; Patricia Williams, Binger, Okla., membership; Becky Lee, Madisonville, Tenn., publicity; Janice Steck, Knoxville, Ill., queen chairman; and Mary Jane Rush, Shreveport, La., ways and means.

In addition to Richardson, Carolyn Evans of Union City, Ind., was also honored as a Lassie of the Year recipient. She has served as a director, vice president, and president of the Indiana Shorthorn Lassies. She served six years on the National Shorthorn Lassies board of directors as ways and means chairperson and consistently assisted in maintenance of the national Shorthorn promotional booth at the North American show in Louisville, Ky.

She is a member of the County Ag Day Committee, a 4-H Inc. board member, and a supervisor for the Soil and Water Conservation District. She and her husband, Richard, have been exhibiting Shorthorns on the local, state, and national level for 20 years. Their partnership, Willow Ridge Shorthorns, have shown many champions and have emphasized youth work and have given encouragement to many 4-H members.

The Fort Worth Show was also the site of competition for the title of National Shorthorn Lassie Queen and entrants from 10 states participated. The crown went to Anne Jordan, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Jordan, Rensselaer, Ind. Anne is a senior at Rensselaer Central High School and plans a college major in agricultural marketing at Purdue University or Oklahoma State University. She has been editor-in-chief for the school yearbook for two years, a delegate to the National Journalism Youth Conference, first runner-up in the Rotary Speech Contest, and selected as a Legislative Page. She has won various showmanship contests, is an FFA member, and been on livestock judging teams. She is a member of Sigma Di Gamma, the Senior Hall of Fame and is a math, Spanish and English honor student. Anne also plans a trip to Argentina to study agriculture and perfect her Spanish.

Holly Hinderliter, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hinderliter of Albion, Ill., was named the National Alternate Shorthorn Lassie Queen. She is a senior at Edwards County High School, where she maintains a 4.0 GPA. CONSERVATION TILLAGE SYSTEMS

Whether you are concerned about SOIL COMPACTION or RESIDUE MANAGEMENT

DMI

ECOLOTIL TILLAGE SYSTEMS Solve Your Problems!!!

DMI's Patented Point Makes The Difference

ECOLOTIL SYSTEMS

DMI SYSTEM	Min. HP Required
3 Shank Ecolotil	80
5 Shank Ecolotil	130
527 Ecolotiger	130
530 Ecolotiger	170
703 Ecolotiger	250

Each of these machines can be equipped to meet your particular needs. Your choices include shank style, shank arrangement, coulters/discs, rear levelers or point style.

Soil Compaction is a problem on every farm we've checked. Breaking up the compaction layer

1) decreases soil run-off in wet years, by permitting water to percolate into the subsoil

2) makes room for plant roots systems to seek and find moisture in dry years

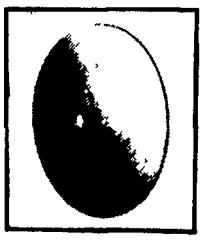
#1 CONSERVATION DISC In The EAST

Here's Three Reasons WHY They WORK On Eastern Farms — The Toughest Tillage Conditions In The U.S.

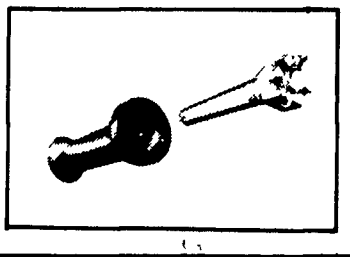
HEAVY-DUTY GANGS

Krause Invented The ROCK-FLEX BEARING SYSTEM.

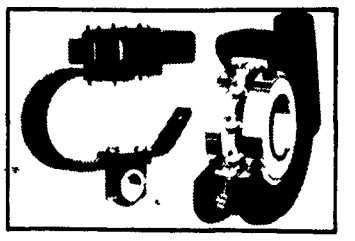
THE HEART OF THE GANG...



IMPACT RESISTANT DISC BLADES With 2.5" Concavity For CONSERVATION Residue Management



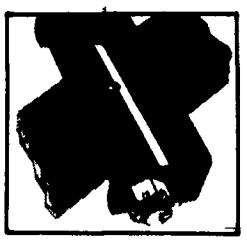
COLD-ROLLED Alloy Tie Rods With Nuts On Both Ends. DUCTILE IRON SPOOLS w/Machined Ends For Tight Fit



Regreasable BEARINGS Encased In RUBBER Inside A CAST-IRON Housing To Reduce Shock To The Bearings (2 YEAR BEARING WARRANTY)

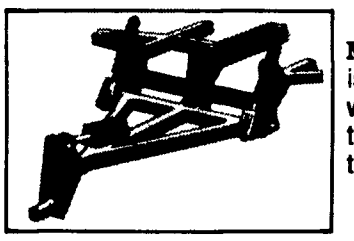
HEAVY-DUTY FRAME

Krause Invented The FLEX-WING System That LEVELS YOUR FIELDS...



Big 1½ "x15" wing hinge bolts in replaceable, hardened wear bushings. Grease zerk provided for lubrication. (4990 Series)

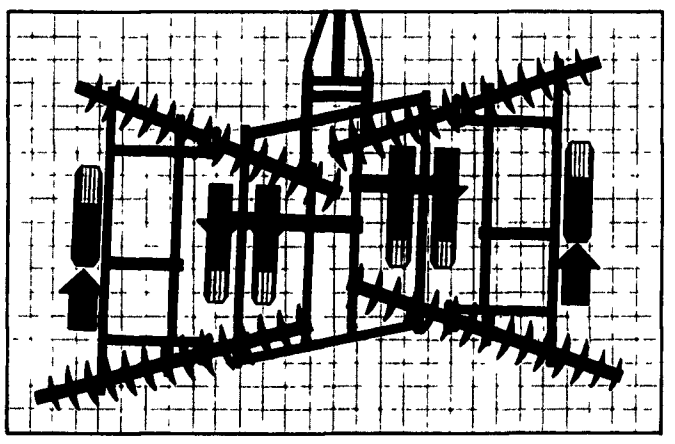
Super-strength frame with gang beams bolted to the underside of the frame for extra durability compared to integrated construction techniques where gangs are welded onto the frames.



Massive hitch is built for rugged field use, with a large 4"x4" steel center tube, and 2"x4" steel tube braces. (4900 Series)

UNIQUE WHEEL ARRANGEMENTS

(4900 Series)



This special wheel arrangement saves fuel by helping to prevent gouging.

In field position, the center wheels move backward as the wing wheels move forward — providing more uniform depth-gauging of front wing gangs. Heavy-duty, regreasable wheel hubs and big 10:00x15" 8-ply tires are standard equipment.

PERFORMANCE IN THE FIELD – Cutting, Finishing, Or Residue Management: KRAUSE DISCS CUT IT!

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

Plant Population Guidelines Benefit Corn Growers

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — While corn plant population decisions ultimately depend on individual grower operations, general guidelines can benefit all growers.

Mark Mattingly, Northrup King agronomist for the Northeast, said achieving proper plant populations is essential to reaching other corn production goals.

Mattingly suggests that growers match populations to the soil types and fertility of each field. Growers should also choose populations that maximize the hybrid's potential to reach the yield goal for each field and adjust populations for grain or silage. In addition, growers can base populations on the seed company's recommendations for each hybrid and the expected environment in each field.

The Northrup King agronomist notes that planter performance methods also can impact plant populations. He advises growers to check and adjust their planter units to assure that the units drop seed at the most uniform spacing possible. Worn metering mechanisms, the lack of calibration, and driving too fast can all cause uneven seed drop within the row. In fact, a wide variation in plant spacing can make a several-bushels- per- acre difference in actual yield.

In addition, Mattingly cautions growers to pay close attention to seed company recommendations. Northrup King, for example, offers a range of populations for stressful, favorable, and optimal growing conditions. These recommendations are designed to help growers match each hybrid to the prevailing planting environment.

YIELD ADVANTAGE

TESTS ACROSS THE COUNTRY PROVE THE YIELD ADVANTAGE OF BULLET.

370 side-by-side comparisons of active ingredient in Bullet (alachlor) and Bicep® (metolachlor) were compared, the following results were obtained by local farmers.

It will be no different for your corn seedlings.

Now it's even a better time to use a less stress herbicide like encapsulated

BULLET

Bullet's active ingredient is released over a period of time, thus all of the chemical is not taken up by the crop when it is young; resulting in a yield advantage for Bullet users.

Bullet® Micro-Tech®, Partner® & Bicep Are Restricted Use Pesticides. Always Read and Follow Label Directions.
Bicep & Dual Are Registered Trademarks of Ciba.

We would like to take a moment & thank those of you who braved the weather & made it to our Jan. 5th sale. To those of you who were unable to attend, I would like to extend an invitation for you to come to our March 16th sale. If you have never been to our sale, it is different than any you will attend. All equipment is sold absolute without reserve or minimum. Consignors sign a 9 point contract with us & we enforce it with no exceptions. We had an individual who broke his contract on our Jan. 5th sale & is currently being prosecuted in Kankakee County Courthouse. We have loader tractors, docks & people to help you load 6 days a week. Lunch will be provided sale day by First Reformed Church Of Wichert Mission Committee. Bring a good appetite. We have delivery available to anywhere in the U.S. or Canada. Due to early deadlines, I had to write this ad on MARCH 1, 1994. If this sale is like the last one, it will at least triple in size by sale day. So please, give us a call & we can send you pictures or updated brochures on equipment. Looking forward to seeing you March 16, 1994 9:30 A.M. C.S.T.

P.S. We will be selling with 2 auction teams at a time. Combines and tractors will be mixed throughout the sale. We will be selling equipment, tractors and combines at 10:00 A.M.

PURINA

SUPERCOW

A dairy feed that could make your cows more productive, while also improving their feed conversion and breeding efficiency.

SUPERCOW is a blend of high fat nuggets and pellets specially designed and manufactured by Purina to deliver feed quality, nutrient density and super palatability. The nutrient-rich blend is placed with complete nutrition and is highly palatable.

In field trials, cows fed SUPERCOW produced an average of 6.7 pounds more milk per cow per day, while improving or maintaining milk composition. And while production increased, the cows that were fed SUPERCOW maintained or improved their body-condition scores after freshening and were more-feed efficient.
